Kaeppler, 2008-03-27 The Pacific Ocean covers one third of the earth's surface Comprising thousands of islands and hundreds of cultural groups Polynesia and Micronesia cover a large part of this vast ocean from the dramatic mountains of Hawaii to the small flat coral islands of Kiribati Including both traditional and contemporary arts this book introduces the rich artistic traditions of these two regions traditions that have had a considerable impact on western art in the twentieth century through the influence of artists such as Gauguin Instead of looking at Polynesia and Micronesia separately the book focuses on the artistic types styles and concepts that they share placing each in its wider cultural context From the textiles of Tonga to the canoes of Tahiti Adrienne Kaeppler looks at religious and sacred rituals and objects carving architecture tattooing personal ornaments basket making clothing textiles fashion the oral arts dance music and musical instruments even canoe construction to provide the ultimate introduction to the rich and vibrant artistic cultures of the Polynesian and Micronesian islands Santa Cruz Island Figure Sculpture and Its Social and Ritual Contexts William H. Davenport, 2011-09-02 In this ethnographic study of traditional sculpture from Santa Cruz Island near the Solomon Islands in the southwest Pacific the late anthropologist William H

Davenport presents a distinctive genre of figure sculpture produced for and used in traditional religious rituals and ceremonies. The body of the book discusses the history of Santa Cruz Island society since the first Europeans came to the area in 1595, the cultural meanings of its most conspicuous features and descriptions of the main components of worship rituals. The book includes discoveries about the making and use of the figurines as well as the iconography of the pieces. The latter information is derived from general ethnographic data collected in the course of field research between 1958 and 1976 on Santa Cruz Island and the adjacent islands of the Santa Cruz Group where Davenport's many close friends included both his informants in the villages and officers of the British Colonial Service. A dual study of a tradition of so-called tribal art in its context and a study of Santa Cruz Island society, the book includes meticulous descriptions of the sacred objects, currency, dances and social interactions. Davenport's records of 55 specimens of Santa Cruz sculpture from both private collections and museums, initial acquisition, subsequent ownership and other detailed physical information constitute the catalogue section of the book. An engaging and previously unrecorded transcription of information distilled from local informants of the oral myths, rituals and ceremonies reveals how Santa Cruz believers distinguished, celebrated and communicated with their deities. Davenport's own unique photographs, both black and white and color, illustrate rituals on the island and life as it was lived before independence in 1978. His work here is a record of a culture which is barely now either lived or remembered by the descendants of those who created it and all figural sculpture discovered in the future must be judged against this corpus of authenticated originals. Audiences will include anthropologists interested in the tribal arts of Pacific peoples, libraries with Melanesian collections, art historians, contemporary historians interested in the difference between description and comparison and the special political and economic situation of colonialism.
