

In Defense of Future Paradox Pokemon!

(They're not all boring and samey!)

Head frequently pops off and springs around in toy-like fashion.

Cooling tank with retractable hose instead of bag tail

Shinies aren't unique, but look like factory rejects missing paint rather than having different pigments!

Skates for feet

Pixelated monitors make up Jugulis's face!

Faces power off when asleep!

Kinetic orb design is a perfect way to transition the 'rolling' motif to a robot! One of the more original designs.

Not as original, but segmented, erratic, wings are a fun interpretation.

Praised by everyone, Valiant is fusion of Galade/Gardevoir.

More mysterious than Past Paradoxes. Tease a future of unknown condition. "Are all Pokemon in the future robots?" "Why?" "Did something happen?" "What or who built them?" "Do they live in the wild or in futuristic cities?" "Is there a 'wild' where they're from?"

Fair point, but doesn't apply to all Future Paradoxes. Prior to Verizion's especially. They can be really creative! Hopefully we see more with interesting concepts as more hopefully get added.

"They're all the same! Just robot versions of their original counterparts. Nothing unique or new about their designs." (What people are actually talking about.)
