Evaluation of carcass and meat quality in ruminants C. Lazzaroni, S. Gigli, D. Gabina, 2023-08-28 Livestock production systems will only be sustained in the long term if their products continue to meet the demand of consumers The quality of ruminant carcasses meat and meat products is of predominant importance in a competitive market where consumers tend to have a preconceived idea about the criteria that define meat quality such as flavour tenderness juiciness smell colour and texture The carcass evaluation could be interesting as a precocious classification of the final quality of meat coming from each carcass Today the quality characteristics of the meat must be different according to its utilisation supermarket butcher catering refectory etc and so it is very important to choose very early the final destination of the carcass Obviously the carcass classification must correlate with meat quality characteristics required by final consumer Other important factors that have to be taken into account in order to maintain a demand for ruminant meat are safety and traceability This book reviews the historical and recent developments for carcass evaluation and grading for meat quality assessment in beef and sheep It places special emphasis on new concepts and approaches to define carcass and meat quality and on the use of modern technologies for composition and quality evaluation A range of technologies are presented such as ultrasounds and colour reflectance X ray computerised tomography spectral and thermal imaging image analysis and NIRS The use of phenotypic markers such as the plasma hormones and genetic markers to predict carcass composition and meat quality are also presented

Bureau of Mines Research United States. Bureau of Mines, 1989 Energy Research Abstracts , 1989 Theories of Human Development Barbara M. Newman, Philip

R. Newman, 2015-06-26 Key human development theories that continue to guide research and practice are examined in this engaging text. Ten key theories are grouped into three families: those that emphasize biological systems, environmental factors, and those that reflect an interaction between the two. This organization enhances students' ability to evaluate, compare, and contrast theories both within and across families. Each family is introduced with an overview of their unique perspectives and the rationale for grouping them together. Discussion of each theory includes the cultural/historical context during the theory's development, its key concepts and ideas, extensions of the theory in contemporary work, an example showing a modification of the theory, an application of how the theory is used to inform practice, and an analysis of how the theory answers 6 basic questions that a human development theory should address. Each chapter includes an overview of the strengths and weaknesses of the theories to facilitate comparisons. Theories that have a clear lifespan focus, along with cases and examples that address issues across the lifespan, are included. The second edition features a new chapter on bioecological theory that highlights the increased use of this theory in the development of family, school, and community intervention programs. A new epilogue examines the same case via each of the ten theories, illustrating their similarities and differences and how these ideas cast a unique light on a common situation. New opening cases bring theory to life along with narrative that links the case to the chapter's concepts, guiding questions that help students compare theoretical perspectives, critical thinking questions that focus on using the theory to interpret the case and personal life experiences, and recommended resources that extend students' understanding. More examples from various disciplines that address topics students are likely to encounter as professionals. A new glossary that defines the boldfaced key terms. Enhanced website at www.psyppress.com 9781848726673 that provides instructors with a test bank, Power points, discussion questions, and activities; additional cases with questions; teaching notes for using the book with various types of majors; and a conversion guide outlining changes to the new edition and students with key terms with hot links to their definitions, chapter summaries and outlines, and additional resources for further study. Updated research and applications highlight the latest scientific developments. Ideal for advanced undergraduate or beginning graduate courses in theories of development, lifespan, or child development, taught in psychology, human development, family studies, education, and social work.

Planning Later Life Mark Schweda, Larissa Pfaller, Kai Brauer, Frank Adloff, Silke Schicktanz, 2017-07-06 This book examines the relevance of modern medicine and healthcare in shaping the lives of elderly persons and the practices and institutions of ageing societies. Combining individual and social dimensions, Planning Later Life discusses the ethical, social, and political consequences of increasing life expectancies and demographic change in the context of biomedicine and public health. By focusing on the field of biomedicine and healthcare, the authors engage readers in a dialogue on the ethical and social implications of recent trends in dementia research and care, advance healthcare planning, or the rise of anti-ageing medicine and prevention. Bringing together the largely separated debates of individualist bioethics on the one hand and public health ethics on the other, the volume deliberately considers the entanglements of envisioning evaluating and controlling individual and societal futures So far the process of devising and exploring the various positive and negative visions and strategies related to later life has rarely been reflected systematically from a philosophical sociological and ethical point of view As such this book will be crucial to those working and studying in the life sciences the humanities and the social sciences particularly in the areas of bioethics social work gerontology and aging studies healthcare and social service sociology social policy and geography and population studies

Food Structure ,1990 Soil Colloids and Their Associations in Aggregates Marcel F. De Boodt, Michael H.B. Hayes, Adrien Herbillon, 2013-11-21 S Henin Versailles France It was a pleasure for me to take part in the NATO Advanced Study Workshop for studies of Soil Colloids and their Associations in Soil Aggregates The meeting provided me with a welcome opportunity to renew acquaintances with respected colleagues in the various fields of Soil Science to listen to their presentations and be involved in discussions which were at the frontiers of the science which deals with the structures and the associations of the soil colloidal constituents In my view the rapid advances in Soil Science and the great benefits to agriculture from these have their origins in the emerging understanding of the structures and the associations of the different soil colloids It is clear that much research is still needed before the molecular details of the most important of the structures and of the interactions are fully understood The associations between the soil colloids and the manner in which they bind to or hold the other constituents of soils in aggregates is fundamental to soil fertility and the Modern intensive agriculture leads to the degradation of soil structure subsequent loss through erosion of a resource that is vital for the production of food This degradation is considered to result primarily from the biological oxidation of the indigenous soil organic matter and from the failure to return to the soil sufficient organic residues to compensate for such losses
