Developing and Managing Community Water Supplies Jan Davis, Gerry Garvey, Michael Wood, 1993 This book discusses the issues and stages in the development of water supplies from the initiation of a programme through to the community management of a supply system The importance of involving all the members of a community in decisions about water provision is emphasised as is the need to incorporate hygiene education

Sharing the City John Abbott, 2013-11-05 While the rate of urbanisation in the developing world has increased dramatically over the past 20 years governments capacity to support urban growth has in many cases failed to keep up with this trend Non governmental organisations working in the field have long advocated community management of the urban environment as the best solution to this problem and there is now a growing consensus that the answer does indeed lie with local communities Yet there is still little understanding of what constitutes meaningful and effective community participation or how it may be achieved in such a complex operating environment Sharing the City gives a comprehensive account of urban community participation both in theory and practice It first presents a wide ranging analysis of the issues and develops a participatory framework for urban management Using case studies and existing examples from around the world and drawing on lessons learned from previous experience it then develops the theory into a practical working model Effective participatory urban management calls for a fundamental rethink on the part of all the actors involved from local authorities and development agencies through local and international NGOs to the community based organisations and the communities themselves In redefining their roles and relationships Sharing the City presents a new and radically different yet viable and effective approach to the concept of urban management

Water Services Management David Stephenson, 2005-03-01 Water services include water supply sewerage and stormwater drainage The facilities needed for these services are pipelines reservoirs and treatment works but the service goes beyond the infrastructure It includes economics billing and business management Although these services exist in every city being advanced by the growing use of automation and information technology costs are also increasing without many consumers seeing increased benefits Customer service is therefore becoming important to the industry Water Services Management is intended to educate engineers to manage and improve water services rather than simply designing and constructing treatment works and distribution systems The text covers water supply and drainage from the hydraulic and economic points of view and while design and construction practices are reviewed the focus of the book is on improving existing systems to turn the emerging industry into an attractive business Topics covered include Potable water supply sewerage and stormwater drainage Hydraulic management storage peak flow attenuation and pumping Water quality standards pollution control and treatment Infrastructure management rehabilitation reconstruction upgrading and maintenance Economic efficiency asset management privatization and risk analysis Improving economic viability via efficient use of energy and construction project management Characteristics encountered in developing countries are also considered including Low cost sanitation water supply standards and off grid energy sources Capacity building and appropriate technologies Financing operation and benchmarking The Oxfam Handbook of Development and Relief Deborah Eade,1995 Resource Assessment of Non-wood Forest Products Jennifer Ley Gn Wong,Kirsti Thornber,Nell Baker,2001-01-01 This publication is intended as reference material for practitioners considering inventory of non wood forest product NWFP resources Through review and analysis of experience it provides an overview of biometric issues in the design of NWFP inventory in the following areas a description of the range of approaches used and developed to date and their biometric adequacy and a suggested method for selecting appropriate biometric methods for resource quantification in different situations and for different products Prices, Products, and People Gregory J. Scott,1995 The authors go beyond the traditional presentation of economic principles offering instead a series of applied methods for data collection and analysis Drawing on extensive experience in Africa Asia and Latin America they not only describe specific procedures but also provide a wealth of illustrative research results This book will be particularly useful to teaching professionals development specialists and applied researchers working in developing countries Doing Comparative Education Research Keith Watson,2001-01-01 In the newly emerging global economic order governments and policy makers are keen to seek ideas from other countries and recognise the importance of looking comparatively This expansion of interest in comparative education brings new challenges for the discipline research may be undertaken by non specialists by consultants and politicians or educationists from quite different backgrounds the short lifespan of democratically elected governments may lend attraction to quick fix solutions statistics and data may be decontextualised Added to these challenges there is the worldwide proliferation of education providers outside state control and the transformation of teaching and learning brought about by the new information technology This book rethinks the role of comparative education in the light of these changing circumstances and looks at the new opportunities they bring Methods on the Move ,
