memory as it investigates the role of these women and other female workers in the shifting public narrative during and after the Maiden Ladies Tomb renovation By exploring the ways in which the deceased young women were perceived to haunt the living and the diverse renovations recommended the book illuminates how women workers in Taiwan have been conceptualized in the last several decades In their proposals to renovate the tomb the interested parties forged specific accounts of history transforming the collective burial site according to varying definitions of heritage as Taiwan shifted to a postindustrial economy where factory jobs were no longer the main source of employment Their plans engaged with acts of remembering communal and individual to create new ways of understanding the present The Twenty five Maiden Ladies Tomb as a heritage site elucidates how history and memory are not simply about the past but part of a forward looking process that emerges from the social political and economic needs of the present legitimized and validated through its associations with the past
