The Self and the Sacred Rodger Milton Payne, 1998 From about 1740 to 1850 evangelical Protestantism became a major cultural force in virtually all areas of America Emerging from this religious movement was a rich vernacular literature of conversion narratives and spiritual autobiographies writings in which believers described their own salvation in hopes of converting others In The Self and the Sacred Rodger M Payne examines these neglected texts in depth focusing particularly on what they reveal about notions of selfhood and how those notions were incorporated into Christian orthodoxy As Payne explains conversion narratives point to a fascinating paradox that became evident among evangelicals as they were confronted by the disruptions and discontinuities marking their culture's passage into modernity On the one hand these narratives asserted the traditional Christian values of humility and self effacement an annihilation of the self in the divine On the other hand they created a discourse that allowed one to embrace the modern idea of an autonomous self only by speaking from personal experience could a convert testify to the power of God Despite protests to the contrary Payne writes the central character of any conversion account spiritual diary or spiritual autobiography was the convert not God Using the theology of Jonathan Edwards as a key example Payne shows how Puritan piety encouraged the development of autobiographical spiritual narratives He goes on to explain the ways in which the discourse of conversion functioned apart from the control of the church and marked the growth of evangelicalism into a discursive community Finally he considers how the language of conversion functioned as a rhetorical space in which believers situated themselves individually within sacred space and time before turning back to society with a renewed regard for others Drawing throughout on the insights of such theorists as Michel Foucault and Victor Turner Payne's penetrating analysis reveals the early conversion accounts as mythic texts through which the modern self emerged The Author Rodger M Payne is associate professor of religious studies at Louisiana State University He is editor in chief of The Journal of Southern Religion an electronic publication available on the World Wide Web

The Routledge Companion to Early Christian Thought D. Jeffrey Bingham, 2009-12-15 The shape and course which Christian thought has taken over its history is largely due to the contributions of individuals and communities in the second and third centuries Bringing together a remarkable team of distinguished scholars The Routledge Companion to Early Christian Thought is the ideal companion for those seeking to understand the way in which Early Christian thought developed within its broader cultural milieu and was communicated through its literature especially as it was directed toward theological concerns Divided into three parts the Companion asks how Christianity's development was impacted by its interaction with cultural philosophical and religious elements within the broader context of the second and third centuries examines the way in which Early Christian thought was manifest in key individuals and literature in these centuries analyses Early Christian thought as it was directed toward theological concerns such as God Christ Redemption Scripture and the community and its worship

I Am Put Here for the Defense of the Gospel Terry L. Miethe, 2016-04-19 Dr Norman L Geisler has been called the father of evangelical Christian philosophy He has written more than one hundred books and taught at universities and top seminaries for some fifty six years He was the first president of the Evangelical Philosophical Society and the founder and first president of the International Society of Christian Apologetics He has spoken or debated in more than two dozen countries and held pastoral pulpit ministries in four states Many view him as a cross between Thomas Aquinas and Billy Graham No one has done more to communicate the modern challenges of the Faith to the average Christian to the church and to the academy This volume offers creative and constructive essays from twenty three contributors all notable in their own right who preserve and propagate Dr Geisler's ideas and express appreciation for his influence Those who know him best say he is true faithful and blessed by God

The Bible in Theology and Preaching Donald K. McKim, 1999-05-05

Augustine and the Environment John Doody, Kim Paffenroth, Mark Smillie, 2016-09-30 This volume brings into dialogue the ancient wisdom of Augustine of Hippo a bishop of the early Christian Church of the fourth and fifth centuries with contemporary theologians and ethicists on the topic of the environment and humanity's place in and responsibility to it The contributors vary widely in their estimation of how sustained and useful such a dialogue might be from outright dismissal of the church father to extended speculation with him and in his spirit Their conclusions impact our views of God and both human and non human creation Such engagement should influence any future discussion of how Christianity and environmentalism can interact or influence one another
