Thomas, 2024-11-01 Originally published in 1983 The Making of Community Work is the outcome of a two year study of community work in the United Kingdom The main purpose of the study was to review the development of community work and to suggest some of the issues in practice and training that might be important in the 1980s Much of the first part of the book is taken up with the emergence of community work as an occupation David Thomas tries to clarify its contribution to a number of political and social processes and to define community work in a way which distinguishes it from other kinds of interventions The second part of the book deals with training research literature and employment in community work it includes a review of college and field based training opportunities and a critical discussion of the state of theory and ideology in the occupation It was hoped it would be an important source of ideas and inspiration for the years ahead It was the first major review of community work since its re-discovery in the 1960s it will still be of interest to all those involved in community work or wishing to understand its influence on other professions The book was intended for fieldworkers administrators policy makers trainers and students in
