

"The characters in THE COLDEST WINTER IN PEKING are, of course, my own creations. However, there is no fiction behind the sufferings and the oppressions described here. The part is real, without exaggeration or distortion. Many of the incidents depicted I have personally experienced or witnessed; others have been related to me by individuals who left China recently. While this novel may seem, at first, to be a political fantasy that seems to predict inevitable events still to occur, I hope the reader will also read it as a realistic portrait of what has happened in China and is still happening."
