The Collegians Le Collegiali:

The Collegians Ninni Lemus, 2005-06 This is an engaging look into the lives of a little girl and her friends living together mostly happily in a boarding school where God simplicity gentle love and education are top priorities In this protected environment the little girl finds fulfillment support and to a great extent contentment peppered with some surprising childhood exploits and their resultant consequences Away from her own parents she finds the maternal love she craves in a nun who nurtures her with affection and with determination through the years For ten years the little girl relies almost wholly on that love but her world is shattered when at the tender age of twelve she is taken away and placed in another collegiate Very young and very alone in a much less protected world separated forever from the nun who had always been there for her as she finds herself fighting everyone but she also meets her first love Le giornate del cinema muto ,2008
