The Community Development Quota Program in Alaska National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Polar Research Board, Ocean Studies Board, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Committee to Review the Community Development Quota Program, 1999-06-03 This book reviews the performance and effectiveness of the Community Development Quotas CDQ programs that were formed as a result of the Sustainable Fisheries Act of 1996 The CDQ program is a method of allocating access to fisheries to eligible communities with the intent of promoting local social and economic conditions through participation in fishing related activities The book looks at those Alaskan fisheries that have experience with CDQs such as halibut pollock sablefish and crab and comments on the extent to which the programs have met their objectives helping communities develop ongoing commercial fishing and processing activities creating employment opportunities and providing capital for investment in fishing processing and support projects such as infrastructure It also considers how CDQ type programs might apply in the Western Pacific

The Community Forests of Mexico David Barton Bray, Leticia Merino-Pérez, Deborah Barry, 2005-08-01 This is an important and comprehensive book that is timely original and of uniformly high quality There is relatively little familiarity outside of Mexico with the incredibly rich experience of community forest management there Certainly no comprehensive review such as this book exists that covers so many aspects of the subject The book will appeal to scholars from both social and biophysical sciences interested in forest management and in broader conservation and development issues Marianne Schmink Director of the Center for Latin American Studies Tropical Conservation and Development Program University of Florida Mexico leads the world in community management of forests for the commercial production of timber Yet this success story is not widely known even in Mexico despite the fact that communities around the globe are increasingly involved in managing their own forest resources To assess the achievements and shortcomings of Mexico's community forest management programs and to offer approaches that can be applied in other parts of the world this book collects fourteen articles that explore community forest management from historical policy economic ecological sociological and political perspectives The contributors to this book are established researchers in the field as well as many of the important actors in Mexico's nongovernmental organization sector Some articles are case studies of community forest management programs in the states of Michoacán Oaxaca Durango Quintana Roo and Guerrero Others provide broader historical and contemporary overviews of various aspects of community forest management As a whole this volume clearly establishes that the community forest sector in Mexico is large diverse and has achieved unusual maturity in doing what communities in the rest of the world are only beginning to explore how to balance community income with forest conservation In this process Mexican communities are also managing for sustainable landscapes and livelihoods
