Ubiquitous Musics Marta García Quiñones, Anahid Kassabian, Elena Boschi, 2016-02-17 Ubiquitous Musics offers a multidisciplinary approach to the pervasive presence of music in everyday life The essays address a variety of situations in which music is present alongside other activities and does not demand focused attention from sometimes involuntary listeners The contributors present different theoretical perspectives on the increasing ubiquity of music and its implications for the experience of listening The collection consists of nine essays divided into three sections Histories Technologies and Spaces The first section addresses the historical origins of functional music and the debates on how reproduced music including a wide range of styles and genres spread so quickly across so many environments The second section focuses on more contemporary sound technologies including mobile phones in India the role of visible playback technology in film and listening to portable digital players The final section reflects on settings such as malls stores gyms offices and cars in which ubiquitous musics are often present but rarely thought about This last section and ultimately the whole collection seeks to foster a wider understanding of listening practices by lending a fresh critical ear Genres of Listening Xochitl

Widdowson,Herbert Halpert,2015-02-20 This collection of Newfoundland folk narratives first published in 1996 grew out of extensive fieldwork in folk culture in the province. The intention was to collect as broad a spectrum of traditional material as possible and Folktales of Newfoundland is notable not only for the number and quality of its narratives but also for the format in which they are presented. A special transcription system conveys to the reader the accents and rhythms of each performance and the endnote to each tale features an analysis of the narrator's language. In addition, Newfoundland has preserved many aspects of English and Irish folk tradition, some of which are no longer active in the countries of their origin. Working from the premise that traditions virtually unknown in England might still survive in active form in Newfoundland, the researchers set out to discover if this was in fact the case.

Appraisal Processes in Emotion Klaus R. Scherer, Angela Schorr, Tom Johnstone, 2001-05-03 The scientific study of emotion has long been dominated by theories emphasizing the subjective experience of emotions and their accompanying expressive and physiological responses. The processes by which different emotions are elicited has received less attention, the implicit assumption being that certain emotions arise automatically in response to certain types of events or situations. Such an assumption is incompatible with data showing that similar situations can provoke a range of emotions in different individuals or even the same individual at different times. Appraisal theory first suggested by Magda Arnold and Richard Lazarus was formulated to address this shortcoming in our understanding of emotion. The central tenet of appraisal theory is that emotions are elicited according to an individual's subjective interpretation or evaluation of important events or situations. Appraisal research focuses on identifying the evaluative dimensions or criteria that predict which emotion will be elicited in an individual as well as linking the appraisal process with the production of emotional responses. This book represents the first full-scale summary of the current state of appraisal research. Separate sections cover the history of appraisal theory and its fundamental ideas, the views of some of the major theorists currently active in the field, theoretical and methodological problems with the appraisal approach, including suggestions for their resolution, social, cultural, and individual differences, and the application of appraisal theory to understanding and treating emotional pathology and the methodology used in appraisal research, including measuring and analyzing self-report, physiological, facial, and vocal indicators of appraisal, and simulating appraisal processes via computational models. Intended for advanced students and researchers in emotion psychology, it provides an authoritative assessment and critique of the current state of the art in appraisal research.

Qualitative Sociology Howard Schwartz, Jerry Jacobs, 1979-02 Efforts to reconstruct the reality of a social scene have evolved numerous theoretical and methodological strategies. Qualitative sociology fills the gap in existing literature by providing a comprehensive and detailed treatment of the broad range of non-quantitative methods currently being used in sociological research with the conceptual rationales for each method Recognizing the need for a clear concise discussion of both the theoretical and practical aspects of reality reconstruction and formal sociology Drs Schwartz and Jacobs draw on the theories and strategies of Weber Mead Blumer Glaser Straus Simmel Goffman Schutz Garfinkel and Cicourel among others to justify explain and illustrate field studies participant observation ethnography interviewing life histories and personal accounts the analysis of unobtrusive measures audio visual techniques methods of studying and subjectivity phenomenology and more Thus the authors not only describe the various theories and methods but they add to the reader s understanding by providing insight into who has used the methods and why and by evaluating the strengths and weaknesses of each method They also supplement the text throughout with a collection of case studies which illustrate the kind of substantive work qualitative research can produce No other available text covers as many methods as are described in Qualitative Sociology All the methods are examined in an informal conversational style making the discussion accessible to the student with no previous knowledge of qualitative theories and practices
