and gangs play in local communities in the new democracies of Southeast Asia Scholars have typically characterized irregular forces as spoilers and infiltrators in post conflict peacebuilding processes The contributors to this book challenge this conventional understanding of irregular forces in Southeast Asia demonstrating that they often attract solid support from civilians and can be major contributors to the building of local security a process by which local residents in the absence of an effective police force develop partner or are at least included in the management of community crimes and other violence They analyze irregular forces dealings with political actors at the community level explaining why and how forces are incorporated in and collaborate with legitimate institutions without using violence against them Offering a new approach to dealing with irregular forces in Southeast Asia contributors explore new theoretical frameworks that are better suited for evaluating irregular forces relationship to different security providers and the political environments in the region Specifically they examine case studies from Indonesia Timor Leste the Philippines and Thailand A valuable resource for researchers students and practitioners in the areas of conflict resolution peacebuilding and security governance especially those with a focus on Southeast Asia This book will also be of great interest to scholars of the sociology and anthropology of the region Crafting Cooperation Amitav Acharya,Alastair Iain Johnston,2007-11-22 Regional institutions are an increasingly prominent feature of world politics Their characteristics and performance vary widely some are highly legalistic and bureaucratic while others are informal and flexible They also differ in terms of inclusiveness decision making rules and commitment to the non interference principle This is the first book to offer a conceptual framework for comparing the design and effectiveness of regional international institutions including the EU NATO ASEAN OAS AU and the Arab League The case studies by a group of leading scholars of regional institutions offer a rigorous historically informed analysis of the differences and similarities in institutions across Europe Latin America Asia Middle East and Africa The chapters provide a more theoretically and empirically diverse analysis of the design and efficacy of regional institutions than heretofore available
