Granular Nanoelectronics David K. Ferry, John R. Barker, Carlo Jacoboni, 2013-12-14 The technological means now exists for approaching the fundamental limiting scales of solid state electronics in which a single carrier can in principle represent a single bit in an information flow In this light the prospect of chemically or biologically engineered molecular scale structures which might support information processing functions has enticed workers for many years The one common factor in all suggested molecular switches ranging from the experimentally feasible proton tunneling structure to natural systems such as the micro tubule is that each proposed structure deals with individual information carrying entities Whereas this future molecular electronics faces enormous technical challenges the same limit is already appearing in existing semiconducting quantum wires and small tunneling structures both superconducting and normal meta devices in which the motion of a single charge through the tunneling barrier can produce a sufficient voltage change to cut off further tunneling current We may compare the above situation with today s Si microelectronics where each bit is encoded as a very large number not necessarily fixed of electrons within a charge pulse The associated reservoirs and sinks of charge carriers may be profitably tapped and manipulated to provide macro currents which can be readily amplified or curtailed On the other hand modern semiconductor ULSI has progressed by adopting a linear scaling principle to the down sizing of individual
