IMF Staff papers International Monetary Fund. Research Dept.,1988-01-01 The proposal to set up an international debt facility to buy the debt of developing countries at a discount and then mark down its contractual value is analyzed The paper considers the central question of how the debtor countries creditor banks and owners of the facility would be affected in particular what redistribution of gains and losses there would be among them The market price effect and the ceiling effect are distinguished A crucial consideration is whether debt retained by banks is subordinated to debt bought by the facility

Human Rights in Developing Countries, Yearbook 1994 Peter R. Baehr,Hilde Hey,Jacqueline Smith,Theresa Swinehart,2024-01-15 Since 1985 seven Yearbooks have appeared containing articles on recent developments with regard to human rights in developing countries Besides topical information on current issues and trends that pertain to these countries in general the Yearbook describes the current situation in a selected group of developing countries The Yearbook 1994 contains national reports on Angola China Ghana Honduras Pakistan Sri Lanka and Tanzania The authors and editors of the Yearbook use a broad definition of human rights meaning not merely civil and political rights but economic social and cultural rights as well This broad and modern perspective on the issue is reflected in the contents of the national reports and in the thematic studies in the first part of the book covering a wide range of issues relevant to human rights in the developing world Among the topics covered by the thematic studies this year are the Convention on the Rights of the Child the influence of recognized human rights standards in the national politics of Eastern Europe the social cost of adjustment and human rights protection and an evaluation of recent positive measures taken in the sphere of North South cooperation The Yearbook is an initiative of human rights institutes in Austria Denmark Norway Sweden and the Netherlands with the purpose of reaching a wide audience interested in both human rights and development aid issues Index to International Statistics,1988

International Handbook on Old-Age Insurance Martin Tracy,Fred C. Pampel,1991-08-26 One measure of public program response to rapidly expanding older populations is the approach to old age pensions under social insurance social assistance and provident fund systems Social insurance is clearly the preferred method of meeting the income needs of the elderly but historical as well as current social and economic conditions are forcing many nations to reevaluate the characteristics of viable and sustainable social insurance programs This has led to a variety of innovations in old age pension programs development including revised benefit formulas raised retirement ages increased income testing and expanded reliance on private occupational supplemental programs The essays in this new international handbook analyze the impact of the economic social and cultural effects of aging populations on government social insurance policies They offer a perspective on how twenty different countries have approached income maintenance programs for the elderly Collectively the contributors demonstrate how governments non governmental entities communities and families respond to changes in traditional income and social service support systems They provide not only descriptions of existing programs but also a
