The New Found Land Of Stephen Parmenius:

The New Found Land of Stephen Parmenius Stephanus Parmenius, 1972 To the young Hungarian scholar and poet Stephen Parmenius the opportunity to sail from England in 1583 to the New World on an exploratory voyage was more than a prospect of romance and adventure it was a source of creative inspiration as well Parmenius was so enthusiastic about the voyage he wrote a poetic tribute in Latin in praise of the project to explore what is now eastern Canada and the northeastern United States Another long poem preceded the voyage and undoubtedly more would have followed had he not been drowned The work that we have is based on his intimate association with Hakluyt and the English explorers It can still be read for its literary virtues and in addition it gives a modern reader valuable insight into the reality of the early transatlantic crossings in contrast to the expectations of the voyagers Parmenius death in a shipwreck off Sable Island brought his career to a premature end He was one of the few Renaissance Latinists to take the new lands and the voyages to them as the subject for epic poetry He was also one of the first to risk his life in exploration in order to base his writing on first hand observation As reflected here his brief career as scholar poet and man of action brings to life one of the formative episodes in the early exploration of Canada's shores This volume introduces Parmenius his work and the circle in which he moved in his adopted England a circle that included the eminent historian William Camden and the explorer Sir Humphery Gilbert It reprints in edited form the poet's three surviving works the two poems and a long letter written from Newfoundland and offers on facing pages Mr Cheshire's supple new English translation of the Latin originals The works are thoroughly annotated and are preceded by a full critical and historical introduction Thier publication here is a both literary and historical interest It is also a tribute to Parmenius and to the vision the early explorers imparted to him This is a book that straddles disciplines Historians will find in it a fascinating and imaginative account of early North American exploration students of Renaissance Latin writing will welcome the publication of Parmenius works hitherto available only in very rare editions and bibliographers will find in the volume a handsome contribution to the source material of Canadian and American studies The New Found Land of Stephen Parmenius Stephanus Parmenius, 1972 Newfoundland in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries

James Hiller, Peter Neary, 1980-12-15 The first comprehensive history of Newfoundland was published in 1793 but a centenary and a half passed before the first university course in the history of the island was offered there During the past fifteen years there has been growing activity in the subject This volume is the work of six scholars who have either studied or taught at the Memorial University of Newfoundland Some have done both The book has two broad aims First to point out the major themes of modern Newfoundland history currently being examined and to offer a number of new interpretations of economic and political development in the last two centuries Second to supplement the standard works that are readily available to students In some areas it provides additional details in others it bridges wide gaps The themes considered include an introduction to the writing of Newfoundland history the transition from the purely maritime economy of the nineteenth century to the mixed oceanic and inland resource economy of the twentieth and the difficulties this involved the decline of the traditional cod fishery in the nineteenth century Newfoundland's rejection of confederation in 1896 the limitations imposed by the fisheries agreements Britain negotiated with France and the United States the consequences of the decision to reject confederation and diversify the local economy the growth of the Fisherman's Protective Union the political atmosphere of the 1920s the party politics in the post confederation period and finally the collapse of Newfoundland's oldest industry the saltfish trade and the province's integration into the North American economy This is a book intended for both regional specialists and general students of Canadian history It provides a valuable resource about a province of rapidly growing importance

Pathways of Creativity in Contemporary Newfoundland and Labrador María Jesús Hernáez Lerena, 2015-09-18 The Canadian province of Newfoundland and Labrador is a mythologized place that resonates with tragic adventure polar expeditions and Grand Banks fishing a real and imagined geography with an incredible artistic output that calls for critical discussion This book examines the diversity of this province's literature and culture taking into consideration the expertise of scholars and writers who have first hand knowledge of its unique context Chapters on history travel fiction autobiography poetry theatre storytelling filmmaking and the visual arts provide an up to date survey across a broad range of artistic endeavours as well as close readings of selected texts The questions that fill the pages of Pathways of Creativity in Contemporary Newfoundland and Labrador arise from the awareness its contributors have of historically shared experiences but also of shared delusions and their essays provoke contemplation beyond the labels local global Newfoundlander Come From Away Aboriginal histories and writing come to the foreground in this panoramic view that balances descriptions of mainstream vernacular and Indigenous cultural productions The final chapter is organized as a multi voiced interview which serves as a supplement to the academic essays Here themes are revisited and personalized as several writers express their feelings about what it means to be a Newfoundlander and an artist As such this book will encourage dialogue about Newfoundland and Labrador's literary and artistic achievements within the international community of readers and researchers

The Ice Hunters Shannon Ryan, 1994 The demand for oil to light and lubricate the industrial world changed the face of much of the planet Newfoundland was part of this widespread transformation as migratory cod fishermen settled here in the early 1800s in order to hunt seals in late winter and early spring The seal fishery brought prosperity and growth and shaped this new society but seal hunters and their families paid a heavy human cost in lives lost and suffering experienced The traditional oil industries were doomed with the discovery of mineral oils and the harnessing of electricity and Newfoundland along with other societies faced painful adjustments while searching for alternative industries However while its place in the economy declined the seal fishery left an indelible imprint on Newfoundland's culture and identity This study with its tables maps and illustrations examines the history of the Newfoundland seal fishery from its origins up to 1914 ranging in scope from the life of the hunter on the ice flows to the demands of the consumer in the market place Shannon Ryan was born in Riverhead Harbor Grace Newfoundland and educated at Memorial University of Newfoundland BA Ed BA and MA and the University of London PH He worked for nine years as a schoolteacher and principal and in 1971 he was appointed to the faculty of History His publications and presentations are in the fields of Newfoundland Maritime fisheries and oral history He served as president of the Newfoundland Historical society during 1984-1988 as Newfoundland's representative on the Social sciences and humanities research council of Canada during 1989-1993 and was elected a fellow of the Royal society in 1988

Newfoundland and Labrador English Sandra Clarke, 2010-02-28 This book is the first full length volume to offer a comprehensive introduction to the English spoken in Britain's oldest overseas colony and since 1949 Canada's youngest province Within North America Newfoundland and Labrador English is a highly distinctive speech variety It is known for its generally conservative nature having retained close ties with its primary linguistic roots the traditional speech of southwestern England and southern Ireland It is also characterised by a high degree of regional and social variation Over the past half century the region has experienced substantial social economic and cultural change This is reflected linguistically as younger generations of Newfoundlanders and Labradorians increasingly align themselves with mainland North American norms The volume includes An accessible description of the phonological grammatical lexical and discourse features of this variety Treatment of regional speech variation within the province and its historical sources Discussion of the social underpinnings of ongoing language change Language samples from both traditional and contemporary speakers A survey of published work on Newfoundland and Labrador English from earlier centuries to the present day Writing the Other Mike Pincombe, 2009-10-02 An international group of scholars working in early modern English literature and culture have been invited to reflect upon one of the most dynamic dialectics of the period the opposition between the concept human humanist humanism versus the concept barbarous barbarian barbarism The result is Writing the Other Humanism versus Barbarism in Tudor England The essays in this volume range widely across the literary and cultural field mapped out by this opposition thus revealing a rich multiplicity of voices and approaches to one of the fundamental processes by which self fashioning and also other fashioning operated during the Tudor reign The focus moves from England to North Africa to Hungary and to the New World in its panoramic display of the vast theatre in which identities were forged The volume as a whole demonstrates how the cultural Other was as much invented as described forged in the sense perhaps of counterfeited during the early modern and especially the Tudor period This invention occasionally led to the demonisation of the object of its gaze at other times its rehumanisation sometimes we may detect evidence of a painful act of distortion and at others we see the purposeful and profitable creation of a self identity with an eye on the rhetorical religious poetic
