Indigenous Networks Jane Carey, Jane Lydon, 2014-06-27 This edited collection argues for the importance of recovering Indigenous participation within global networks of imperial power and wider histories of transnational connections It takes up a crucial challenge for new imperial and transnational histories to explore the historical role of colonized and subaltern communities in these processes and their legacies in the present Bringing together prominent and emerging scholars who have begun to explore Indigenous networks and transnational encounters and to consider the broader significance of extra local connections exchanges and mobility for Indigenous peoples this work engages closely with some of the key historical scholarship on transnationalism and the networks of European imperialism Chapters deploy a range of analytic scales including global regional and intra Indigenous networks and methods including histories of ideas and cultural forms and biography as well as exploring contemporary legacies In drawing these perspectives together this book charts an important new direction in research The Fallen Angel Sally Mitchell, 1981 Discusses the figure of the unchaste woman in a wide range of fiction written between 1835 and 1880 including serious novels by Dickens Mrs Gaskell and George Eliot popular novels that provided light reading for middle class women sensational fiction propaganda for social reform and stories in cheap periodicals which reached a different and far wider audience than either serious or popular novels During these years some women were struggling to become women instead of the angels of purity that sentimental morality had made of them. The sexual woman, the whore, the mistress, the runaway wife, the seduced or fallen innocent, all attracted a cluster of ideas about the differences between women and men, about the power structure in sexual relationships, and about women's place in the social and moral world. In considering these topics, this book traces women and illuminates differences in the fiction writer for different social classes. Publisher description

Frontier Fictions Rebecca Weaver-Hightower, 2018-11-28. This book compares the nineteenth-century settler literatures of Australia, Canada, South Africa, and the United States in order to examine how they enable readers to manage guilt accompanying European settlement. Reading canonical texts such as Last of the Mohicans and Backwoods of Canada against underanalyzed texts such as Adventures in Canada and George Linton or the First Years of a British Colony, it demonstrates how tropes like the settler hero and his indigenous servant, the animal hunt, the indigenous attack, and the lost child cross national boundaries. Settlers similarly responded to the stressors of taking another's land through the stories they told about themselves, which functioned to defend against uncomfortable feelings of guilt and ambivalence by creating new versions of reality. This book traces parallels in 20th and 21st-century texts to ultimately argue that contemporary settlers continue to fight similar psychological and cultural battles since settlement is never complete.

One woman's Charlottetown Evelyn J. MacLeod, 1988-01-01. Margaret Gray Lord was the second daughter of Father of Confederation John Hamilton Gray and the wife of Artemas Lord.
