advancing arguments for the enfranchisement of women and responding to antisuffrage broadsides Commercial publishers were also interested in suffrage cards recognizing their profit potential Their products though were reactive rather than proactive conveying stereotypes they assumed reflected public attitudes often negative towards the movement Cataloging approximately 700 examples this study examines the visual rhetoric of suffrage postcards in the context of the movement itself and as part of the general history of postcards

Germany, Propaganda and Total War, 1914-1918 David Welch, 2000 Adolf Hitler writing in Mein Kampf was scathing in his condemnation of German propaganda in the First World War declaring that Germany had failed to recognize propaganda as a weapon of the first order This despite the fact that propaganda had been regarded arguably for the first time as an intrinsic part of the war effort David Welch has written the first book to fully examine German society politics propaganda public opinion and total war in the Great War Drawing on a wide range of sources from posters newspapers journals film parliamentary debates police and military reports and private papers Welch argues that the moral collapse of Germany was due less to the failure to disseminate propaganda than to the inability of the military authorities and the Kaiser to reinforce this propaganda and to acknowledge the importance of public opinion in forging an effective link between leadership and the people
