IT Success! Michael Gentle, 2007-10-29 Fifty years after the birth of corporate computing IT today is still characterized by 50-70% project failure rates Which is pretty scary when you come to think of it either a goblin has cast a spell on a whole profession or that profession is doing something fundamentally wrong IT Success challenges the widespread assumption that an IT department is like a building contractor whose project managers architects and engineers all construction industry terms are supposed to deliver systems on schedule within budget and to spec Michael Gentle explains why this is not possible and turns conventional wisdom on its head by showing that you cannot define an IT project in terms of contractual budgets and schedules anything can change during the life of a project what is eventually delivered can never be what is actually needed He proposes a new model for IT in which the traditional client vendor relationship with its contractual commitments is replaced by a shared risk reward partnership geared towards workable results over time Using real world examples and a case study the author walks you through the end to end processes of an IT department covering subjects like demand management investment planning agile development and managing production applications organizational change and avoid the pitfalls of a piecemeal or small scale approach STS works from the ground up involving front line employees in analysis and redesign of the entire organization and in explicit examination of an organization's culture In Hewlett Packard's California Personal Computer Division production operators worked alongside managers to redesign their printed circuit assembly line into self managing teams of employees In the Santa Clara Division a very different workforce of engineers initially unwilling to standardize their creativity had to develop commercial applications and become more responsive to customers in order to survive On the basis of Hewlett Packard's success Zell concludes that with top level support and a high investment of resources at the outset redesign can inspire relatively rapid change especially suitable for organizations in fast paced environments As one H P manager commented Empowerment is no longer a nice thing to do It is now a business imperative
