Shropshire's Military Heritage John Shipley,2018-02-15 The picturesque county of Shropshire one of the country's least populated areas has a fascinating military history It was here that the Battle of Shrewsbury took place in 1403 the first battle in which English archers were pitted against each other on English soil The battle was celebrated by Shakespeare in Henry IV Part I The county was a central part of the Welsh Marches during the medieval period and was often embroiled in the power struggles between powerful Marcher Lords the Earls of March and successive monarchs Shropshire is home to many castles built to defend against the Welsh and enable effective control of the region From the mid eighteenth century Shropshire's military heritage has been linked to two regular regiments of the British Army the 53rd and the 85th Regiments of Foot They came together in the late 1880s to form the King's Shropshire Light Infantry KSLI the county's own regiment Soldiers of the KSLI together with the volunteer Shropshire Yeomanry served with great distinction in the two world wars In this book author John Shipley peels back the ravages of time as he explores the military heritage of this historic county

Economies of Desire at the Victorian Fin de Siècle Jane Ford, Kim Edwards Keates, Patricia Pulham, 2015-10-14 This volume marks the first sustained study to interrogate how and why issues of sexuality desire and economic processes intersect in the literature and culture of the Victorian fin de siècle At the end of the nineteenth century the move towards new models of economic thought marked the transition from a marketplace centred around the fulfilment of needs to one ministering to anything that might potentially be desired This collection considers how the literature of the period meditates on the interaction between economy and desire doing so with particular reference to the themes of fetishism homoeroticism the literary marketplace social hierarchy and consumer culture Drawing on theoretical and conceptual approaches including queer theory feminist theory and gift theory contributors offer original analyses of work by canonical and lesser known writers including Oscar Wilde A E Housman Baron Corvo Vernon Lee Michael Field and Lucas Malet The collection builds on recent critical developments in fin de siècle literature including major interventions in the areas of Decadence sexuality and gender studies and asks for instance how did late nineteenth century writing schematise the libidinal and somatic dimensions of economic exchange How might we define the relationship between eroticism and the formal economies of literary production performance And what relation exists between advertising consumer culture and dissident sexuality in fin de siècle literary discourses This book marks an important contribution to 19th Century and Victorian literary studies and enhances the field of fin de siècle studies more generally
