

PREFACE

This new book on Rizal is primarily written to replace the previous college textbooks on Rizal by the senior author, namely, Jose Rizal: Life, Works and Writings and Rizal: Asia's First Apostle of Nationalism, published in 1957 and 1970, respectively. While these two Rizal books have been widely used both here and abroad, the present authors feel that there is a need to write a new Rizal book on account of the fact that new material on the national hero's life have surfaced in the history's limelight, making the older editions rather obsolete or inaccurate in certain passage.

For instance, the International Congress on Rizal, which was held in Manila on December 4-8, 1961 to commemorate the centennial anniversary of the national hero's birthday, uncovered many hitherto unknown facts on Rizal. Since then, more Rizal materials have been researched by Rizalist scholars in foreign countries, particularly Hong Kong, Singapore, Japan, England, Spain, and Germany.

It is delightful to know and to write the biography of Rizal for two reasons. He was an exceptional man, unsurpassed by other Filipino heroes in talent, nobility of character, and patriotism. And, secondly, his life is highly documented, the most documented in fact, of all the heroes in Asia. Possessing a keen sense of history and an aura of destiny, Rizal himself kept and preserved for posterity his numerous poetical and prose writings, personal and travel diaries, scientific treatises, and hundreds of letters written to, and received from, his parents, brothers, sisters, relatives, friends, and enemies. With these preserved documentary sources, any biographer, with not much difficulty may weave his life story. To climax his heroic life, Rizal welcomed his execution on December 30, 1896 with serene courage, knowing that he was going

This study is a synthesis of more than three decades of research conducted mostly in Brazil, the United States, and Europe on the Portuguese and its foreign countries, often by immigrant. We are indebted to the World Council Archives, in particular to the Service Unit which under Stuart Thompson has often served as first reader of manuscript, usually without great discrimination, leaving few necessary further comments on the following:

- (1) World population was 6.0 billion in 1980; population growth has accelerated since then, reaching approximately 7.5 billion people globally, doubling each century during the process.
- (2) The 1987 report of the World Commission on Environment and Development, titled 'Our Common Future', called for sustainable development – one that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.
- (3) The Brundtland Commission Report on Sustainable Development was published in 1987.
