

Jim Crow Etiquette

- A black male could not offer his hand with a white male because it implied being socially equal. Obviously, a black male could not offer his hand or any other part of his body to a white woman, because he risked being accused of rape.
- Blacked and whites were not supposed to sit together. If they did sit together, whites were to be served first, and something placed between them.
- Under no circumstance was a black male to offer to light the cigarette of a white female - that gesture implied intimacy.
- Blacks were not allowed to show public affection toward one another in public, especially kissing, because it offended whites.
- Blacks were introduced to whites, never whites to blacks.
- Whites did not use courtesy titles of respect when referring to blacks. For example, Mr., Mrs., Miss, Sir, or Ma'am. Instead, blacks were called by their first or names. Blacks had to use courtesy titles when referring to whites, and were not allowed to call them by their first names.
- If a black person rode in a car driven by a white person, the black person sat in the back seat, or the back of a truck.
- White motorists had the right-of-way at all intersections.
- When black people conversed with white people:
- Never admit that a white person is lying.
- Never suggest that a white person is from an inferior class.
- Never lay claim to, or overly demonstrate, superior knowledge or intelligence.
- Never curse a white person.
- Never laugh at a white person.
- Never comment upon the appearance of a white female.
