North Carolina Natives The First People of North Carolina

Archaeologists believe that Paleo Indians were the first people to live in North Carolina. Paleo comes from a Greek word meaning "very old." These Native Americans came here around ten to twelve thousand years ago. Paleo Indians were hunters and gatherers. They lived in small groups of about 20 to 50 people. They were nomadic, meaning they moved from place to place. They were often called "nomads" because they did not have a permanent home. They used tools made of stone, bone, and wood. They were also skilled at making clothing from animal skins.

As time passed, Paleo Indians began to live in one place for a long time. They began to grow crops and raise animals. They were called "agriculturalists" because they grew crops and raised animals. They were also skilled at making pottery and weaving.

North Carolina Natives: The First People

They often settled near glacial lakes. These were lakes left behind by large bodies of ice, melted at the end of the Ice Age. Villages, food, tools, and other supplies were readily available.

During the winter months, the Paleo Indians depended on three "staples." These crops were corn, beans, and squash. These crops were grown together. They were called "the three sisters" because they grew together. They were also skilled at making pottery and weaving.
