Sociology Of Literature

Gisèle Sapiro

Sociology Of Literature:

Method in the Sociology of Literature Lucien Goldmann, William Q. Boelhower, 1981-01-01 The Sociology of Literature John A. Hall, 1979 The Sociology of Literature Diana T. Laurenson, Alan Swingewood, 1974 Sociology of Literature Robert Escarpit, 1965 The Sociology of Literature Gisèle Sapiro, 2023-10-24

The Sociology of Literature is a pithy primer on the history affordances and potential futures of this growing field of study which finds its origins in the French Enlightenment and its most salient expression as a sociological pursuit in the work of Pierre Bourdieu. Addressing the epistemological premises of the field at present, the book also refutes the common criticism that the sociology of literature does not take the text to be the central object of study. From this rebuttal, Gisèle Sapiro, the field's leading theorist, is able to demonstrate convincingly one of the greatest affordances of the discipline: its built-in methods for accounting for the roles and behaviors of agents and institutions, publishing houses, prize committees, etc. in the circulation and reception of texts. While Sapiro emphasizes the rich interdisciplinary nature of the approach on display, articulating the way in which it draws on literary history, sociology, postcolonial studies, book history, gender studies, and media studies, among others, the book also stands as a defense of the sociology of literature as a discipline in its own right.

The Sociology of Literature Diana T. Laurenson, 1978 The Sociology of Literature John Hall, 1979 Literature and Sociology L. O. Bamidele, 2000

Literature and Social Practice Philippe Desan, Priscilla Parkhurst Ferguson, Wendy Griswold, 1989

The sociology of literature, in the first of many paradoxes, elicits negations before assertions, write the editors of this volume. It is not an established field or academic discipline. Yet none of these limitations affect the vitality and rigor of the larger enterprise. Convinced that literature and society are essentially related to each other, the contributors to this collection attempt to define the various sociological practices of literature and to give expression to this enterprise and the commitments of its partisans. In various ways, the essays assembled here seek to integrate text, institution, and individual, both author and critic, as necessary parts of the analysis of literature. Diverse, sometimes contradictory, approaches to literature—Marxism, publishing history, new historicism, and others—are utilized as the contributors explore such topics as text, author, function, and appropriation, the reality of representation, the sociology of exchange, the uses of serious fiction, poetry, and politics, publishing history, and the literary field.
