1.3 Related Literature

Historically, solid waste management did not get any specific attention in policy and legislation except as part of the larger domain of environmental issues on utilization, protection and conservation, management of natural resources and the regulation of behavior causing negative impact on the environment (Raballada, 2000). It was provided however in Article II of the Philippine Constitution, that the State shall protect and advance the right of the people to a balanced and healthful ecology in accord with the rhythm and harmony of nature. Thus, the Philippine government take into consideration the promulgation of various Presidential Decrees and the enactment of several Republic Acts which took direct action on solid waste management. The most recent of which is R.A. 9003 or the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act of 2000 which serves as the legal framework for the country's systematic, comprehensive and ecological solid waste management program that shall ensure protection of public health and the environment. It empowers local government units to actively pursue their own SWM systems through preparation of a 10-year SWM plan; creation of a SWM Board responsible for the preparation and implementation of a plan for the safe and sanitary management of solid waste; mandatory segregation of waste; implementation of recycling programs; setting up a Material Recovery Facility; prohibition of open dumpsites as final disposal facility; promoting the establishment of multipurpose environmental cooperatives and associations responsible for undertaking SWM activities or projects; provision of monetary and other rewards and incentives to entities that have undertaken outstanding and innovative SWM programs; encouragement of LGUs to impose fees sufficient to pay the cost of preparing and implementing their SWM plans; creation of a local SWM fund from donations, collection of fees and fines, and allocation from the development fund; and definition of prohibited acts, penalties, suits and other legal actions concerning R.A. 9003. The 10-year SWM plan of an LGU should put emphasis on implementing feasible and environmentally sound techniques of waste minimization such as re-use, recycling, and composting programs. It should identify the amount of landfill and transformation capacity needed for solid waste that cannot be re-used, recycled or composted. The 10-year SWM plan must comply with R.A. 9003 which mandates that 25 percent of all solid waste must be diverted from disposal facilities within a period of three years from the time R.A. 9003 takes effect.

In order to develop a comprehensive provincial SWM plan which will take off from the municipality SWM plans, a provincial SWM Board must be created. LGUs should evaluate the roles of the public and private sectors in providing collection services that will conform with the minimum standards and requirements for collection of solid waste. Such standards that must be met are use of protective equipment by collectors, non-spillage of waste within collection vicinity, separate collection schedules for specific types of waste, separate truckloads or compartmentalized collection vehicles.

Recycling programs will be implemented with the support of Department of Trade and Industry (DTI), Department of Agriculture (DA), and the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG). It is the DTI that is responsible for preparing an inventory of existing markets for processing and purchasing of recyclable materials and implementing a coding system for packaging materials and products to facilitate waste recycling and re-use. It is the responsibility of the DA to publish an inventory of existing markets and demand for compost.

Material Recovery Facilities (MRFs) should be put up in every barangay or cluster of barangays to receive mixed waste for final sorting, segregation, composting, and recycling before non-recyclable wastes are transferred to a storage or disposal facility. Existing open dumpsites shall be converted into controlled dumpsites within three years from the effectivity date of the law. Sanitary landfills shall be developed and operated as final disposal sites in conformance with the guidelines and criteria provided by the law for the location and establishment of sanitary landfills.

Tax credit and duty exemption to individuals and private organizations who have undertaken outstanding and innovative SWM programs shall be granted. LGUs shall adopt specific revenue-generating measures to ensure the viability of their plans. Allocation from the development fund shall be used for activities that will enhance the SWM programs such as research, information, education and communications, and capacity building (Phil-Canada Local Government Support Program, 2003).

Raballada (2000) cited some problems associated with the traditional solid waste management such as increasing volume of solid wastes, lack of disposal sites, ineffective age-old systems of disposal by open dumping and
