Managing the Risks of Extreme Events and Disasters to Advance Climate Change Adaptation Christopher B. Field, Vicente Barros, Thomas F. Stocker, Qin Dahe, 2012-05-28 This Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change Special Report IPCC SREX explores the challenge of understanding and managing the risks of climate extremes to advance climate change adaptation Extreme weather and climate events interacting with exposed and vulnerable human and natural systems can lead to disasters Changes in the frequency and severity of the physical events affect disaster risk but so do the spatially diverse and temporally dynamic patterns of exposure and vulnerability Some types of extreme weather and climate events have increased in frequency or magnitude but populations and assets at risk have also increased with consequences for disaster risk Opportunities for managing risks of weather and climate related disasters exist or can be developed at any scale local to international Prepared following strict IPCC procedures SREX is an invaluable assessment for anyone interested in climate extremes environmental disasters and adaptation to climate change including policymakers the private sector and academic researchers

Extreme Weather Events and Public Health Responses Wilhelm Kirch, B. Menne, R. Bertollini, 2006-01-16 The global climate is changing The trend towards warmer average surface temperatures for the period since 1976 is roughly three times that of the past 100 years as a whole In recent years warming seems to be attributable to human activities man made environmental changes like land use changes deforestation urbanisation and the reduction of wetlands Global climate change is likely to be accompanied by an increase in frequency and intensity of extreme weather events This brings with it increased health risks and hence a demand for an adequate response from local health authorities to meet these risks In 2004 the WHO Regional Office for Europe and the European Environment Agency organized an expert meeting to exchange information and develop recommendations on public health and environmental responses to weather and climate extremes floods heat waves and cold

Great British Weather Disasters Philip Eden, 2008-09-20 Here is a popular book with big set piece descriptions accompanied by illustrations at its core but with enough science to attract both the specialist reader and to educate the lay reader without scaring them off Disaster books traditionally feed on hype sensationalism and bad science Eden redresses the balance What then is the place of weather disasters in our climate Are they freaks or a necessary part of the whole How rare are meteorological events does it take to cause chaos in our day to day lives Are we becoming more at risk and less capable of dealing with them Or do we just complain more These days we try and mitigate the effects of different hazards by acquiring personal and property protection individually personally and politically So what is the role of local and central government the insurance industry the media and the public And how do we actually measure disaster By rarity insurance cost death toll recovery times or what Can we merge all these so we can compare say the 1976 drought with the 1891 blizzard Can we rank disasters 15 000 died in the European heatwave of August 2003 Is this the shape of things to come What will happen if the Gulf Stream North Atlantic Drift stops flowing Here are just a few of Philip Eden's topics in a book which will be riveting to readers
