Liberalisation and Privatisation in the EU European Commission,2012 This monograph gives an overview of the privatisation process in services of general interest in Europe and its outcomes elaborating in particular on its consequences for the European social model In the first parts the history of privatisation is discussed including its timing rationale and drivers An overview of different types of privatisation is also given as well as of the accompanying processes Then the publication looks in detail into the economic outcomes especially in the context of the underlying assumptions which justified decisions to launch the privatisation processes It finds that most of the positive effects expected did not materialise at all or were very minor As regards the creation of competitive markets for example increased competition was only achieved in countries and sectors that had a state monopoly at the outset On the other hand when a number of regional or local monopolies existed market concentration increased as larger companies bought up their smaller competitors Liberalisation and privatisation of public services also fundamentally challenged the traditional labour relations regime in the public sector resulting in a two tier system of stable bargaining structures within the incumbent firms and decentralised and fragmented bargaining structures among new competitors leading to lower employment standards The advocates of shifting from public monopoly promised cheaper and better services and that reduced prices would boost demand and create more jobs However the reality proved different with rising atypical forms of employment and only minor productivity gains driven mainly by lower labour input combined with other cost cutting strategies that led to a deterioration of employment and working conditions Liberalisation and privatisation have also had some positive as well as negative effects on service quality Furthermore the publication argues that these processes have had adverse effects on the European Social Model as they resulted in lower social cohesion in access to good quality public services The publication draws implications for public policy focusing in particular on the key phases of the privatisation process the market regulation processes which need to be in place and the impact of privatisation on employment industrial relations productivity and profitability and service quality EU Bookshop

International Deregulation and Privatization Christian Campbell, 2021-10-01 Issues vital to private investors from competition law to tax aspects are surveyed here by accountants and lawyers from throughout the EU The text shows the extent to which deregulation or liberalization of industrial sectors in the member states of the European Union EU has impacted beyond the economies and financial markets of Europe As more sectors of the European economy open to private participants the effect on the aviation rail insurance telecommunications and utilities sectors as this insightful text shows will continue to intensify dramatically Published under the Transnational Publishers imprint

Privatisation Against the European Social Model Marica Frangakis, 2009-11-05 This book presents a comprehensive overview and critical analysis of the processes of liberalization and privatization and their consequences for economic performance social cohesion and political democracy in the European Union It examines the main drivers and the various theoretical rationales for privatisation in the context of different schools of thinking It argues on the basis of broad empirical evidence that privatisation in Europe particularly the ongoing privatization of social services undermines the basic elements of the different social models that have developed in Europe These arguments are supported by a number of in depth case studies with specific focus on health care education and finance The authors of this volume advance from this critique and explore the basic requirements for a progressive public sector and its role for economic social and democratic development This book will be indispensable reading for all interested in Economic Policy Public Sector Economics European Integration and Political Science

The Fight for Monopoly Lars Borup Pedersen, 2011-02 This study was conducted to cast light on the process of liberalising the European Union energy market with focus on the negotiation process from the Second to the Third Liberalisation Package of the Electricity and Gas market The thesis seeks to analyze how the preferences of EU Member States influenced this process Hence addresses the importance of Member State power in EU legislation Addressing this the thesis applies Moravcsik's theory of Liberal Intergovernmentalism Derived from this theoretical approach investigations are conducted into the area of Member States preferences with special focus on Germany and France and the coalition they formed during the process And further how these preferences influenced the negotiation process and if these preferences changed during the period
