Bennett-Kastor,2015-10-08

Multiliterate Ireland examines a selection of Irish literature to illuminate a legacy of a multilingual history demonstrated through works that range from past centuries to the present era This study examines authors who utilized two or more languages in the same poem play or work of fiction also known as code mixing and code switching of primarily English and Irish Gaelic languages but with the inclusion of others such as Latin Greek and French and examines linguistically and historically why these multiliterate choices were made Included in this analysis are the history of relationships among the languages the historical use of multiple languages by Irish and proto Irish writers the psycholinguistic and cultural effects of colonial suppression of the language the attempts at restoration of Irish and the desire for a post Independence literary legacy in the medium of Irish and a discussion of certain theories and principles of code mixing that were developed in the case of its oral use and which may in some cases extend to writing Along with these historical explanations examples of multiliterate poetry and prose and the writers who produced them from the late 17th or early 18 centuries up through contemporary works are explored in greater depth and serve to illustrate and highlight various uses of code switching and code mixing Finally multiliteracy as art or the use of two or more languages as a means of transcendence beyond the ordinary which is associated with the artistic impulse in general is explored This exploration reveals that many Irish writers were akin historically and culturally to artists in various other media whose multi geographic and multi linguistic experiences were essential to the development of both enduring and new aesthetic principles By examining the literature of these Irish writers through the prism of multiliteracy Multiliterate Ireland attempts to keep at the forefront the authors and their texts and their decisions to break through the wall of English or of Irish to develop an aesthetic that goes beyond a single language and that creates a language that is at once also many languages Islands Magazine ,2000-09 Two Irelands Rebecca Pelan,2005-06-27 The very different histories of the North and South are reflected in their literature While women in the Republic of Ireland have tended to write about social issuessexism crime unemployment and domestic violencewomen in Northern Ireland focused on their society's historical tension and primarily nationalist and unionist politics However Pelan maintains that feminist ideology has provided contemporary Irish women with an alternate political stance that incorporates gender and nationality ethnicity and allows them to move beyond the usual binaries of politics history and languageIrish and English In an analysis enriched by a sophisticated but accessible engagement with contemporary feminist and gender theory Pelan concludes that Irish women's writing whether at the community or mainstream levelNorth or Southconsistently articulates political issues of direct relevance to the lives of Irish women today As a result such work retains close links with the initial impetus of the second wave of feminism as a political movement and questions the legitimacy of long standing social religious and political conventions From within the framework provided by this second wave argues Pelan Irish women can critique certain masculine ideologiesnationalist unionist imperialist and capitalistwithout forfeiting their own sense of gender and national or ethnic identity The book's significance lies in its placement of women's writing in the center of contemporary political discourse in Ireland and in ensuring that the writing from this periodmuch of it long out of printcontinues to exist as sociological as well as literary records It will be of interest to a general and scholarly audience especially those in the fields of contemporary Irish writing feminism and literary history The Irish Way Robert Emmett Ginna,2003 An account of the author's three hundred fifty mile walk from one end of Ireland to the other describes the people he encountered as well as the castles forts cities villages pubs and landmarks he visited Books Ireland ,2005
