Life and Letters and the London Mercury and Bookman ,1929 The Female Romantics Caroline Franklin, 2012-09-10 Awarded the Elma Dangerfield Prize by the International Byron Society in 2013 The nineteenth century is sometimes seen as a lacuna between two literary periods In terms of women s writing however the era between the death of Mary Wollstonecraft and the 1860s feminist movement produced a coherent body of major works impelled by an ongoing dialogue between Enlightenment feminism and late Romanticism This study focuses on the dynamic interaction between Lord Byron and Madame de Sta l Lady Morgan Mary Shelley and Jane Austen challenging previous critics segregation of the male

Romantic writers from their female peers The Romantic movement in general unleashed the creative ambitions of nineteenth century female novelists and the public voice of Byron in particular engaged them in transnational issues of political national and sexual freedom Byronism had itself been shaped by the poet's incursion onto a literary scene where women readers were dominant and formidable intellectuals such as Madame de Staël were lionized Byron engaged in rivalrous dialogue with the novels of his female friends and contemporaries such as Caroline Lamb Mary Shelley and Jane Austen whose critiques of Romantic egotism helped prompt his own self parody in Don Juan Later Victorian novelists such as George Sand the Brontë sisters and Harriet Beecher Stowe wove their rejection of their childhood attraction to Byronism and their dawning awareness of the significance for women of Lady Byron's actions into the feminist fabric of their art

The Romantic Literary Lecture in Britain Sarah Zimmerman, 2019-01-04 At the beginning of the nineteenth century the literary lecture arrived on London's cultural scene as an influential critical medium and popular social event It flourished for two decades in the hands of the period's most prominent lecturers Samuel Taylor Coleridge John Thelwall Thomas Campbell and William Hazlitt Lecturers aimed to shape auditors reading habits burnish their own professional profiles and establish a literary canon Auditors wielded their own considerable influence since their sustained approbation was necessary to a lecturer's success and independent series could collapse midway if attendance waned Two chapters are therefore devoted to the auditors whose creative responses to what they heard often constituted cultural works in their own right Auditors wrote poems and letters about lecture performances acted as patrons to lecturers and hosted dinners and conversation parties that followed these events Prominent auditors included John Keats Mary Russell Mitford Henry Crabb Robinson Catherine Maria Fanshawe and Lady Charlotte Bury The Romantic public literary lecture is a fascinating cultural phenomenon in its own right but understanding the medium has significant implications for some of the period's most important literary criticism such as Coleridge's readings of Shakespeare and Hazlitt's Lectures on the English Poets 1818 The book's two main aims are to chart the emergence of the literary lecture as a popular medium and to develop a critical approach to these events by drawing on an interdisciplinary discussion about how to treat historical speaking performances
