Ward,1967-06-18 The Social Conscience of the Early Victorians F. David Roberts,2002-08-07 In 1830 the dominant social outlook of the early Victorians was a paternalism that looked to property the Church and local Justices of the Peace to govern society and deal with its ills By 1860 however the dominant social outlook had become a vision of a laissez faire society that relied on economic laws self reliance and the vigorous philanthropy of voluntary societies This book describes and analyzes these changes which arose from the rapid growth of industry towns population and the middle and working classes Paternalism did not entirely fade away however just as a laissez faire vision had long antedated 1830 Both were part of a social conscience also defined by a revived philanthropy a new humanitarianism and a grudging acceptance of an expanded government all of which reflected a strong revival of religion as well as the growth of rationalism The new dominance of a laissez faire vision was dramatically evident in the triumph of political economy By 1860 only a few doubted the eternal verities of the economists voluminous writings Few also doubted the verities of those who preached self reliance who supported the New Poor Law s severity to persons who were not self reliant and who inspired education measures to promote that indispensable virtue If economic laws and self reliance failed to prevent distress the philanthropists and voluntary societies would step in Such a vision proved far more buoyant and effective than a paternalism whose narrow and rural Anglican base made it unable to cope with the downside of an industrial urban Britain But the vision of a laissez faire society was not without its flaws Its harmonious economic laws and its hope in self reliance did not prevent gross exploitation and acute distress and however beneficent were its philanthropists they fell far short of mitigating these evils This vision also found a rival in an expanded government Two powerful ideas the idea of a paternal government and the idea of a utilitarian state helped create the expansion of government services A reluctant belief in governmental power thus joined the many other ideas that defined the Victorian s social conscience The Irish in Manchester c.1750-1921 Mervyn Busted,2015-12-01 This book examines the development of the Irish community in Manchester one of the most dynamic cities of nineteenth century Britain Based on research into a wide variety of local sources it examines the process by which the Irish came to be blamed for all the ills of the Industrial Revolution and the ways in which they attempted to cope with a sometimes actively hostile environment It discusses the nature and degree of residential segregation in one notable Irish district and the role of the Catholic Church as a source of spiritual comfort and the base for a dense network of mutual aid and social and cultural organisations It also examines how the Irish community allied itself with local campaign groups and political parties and organised celebrations and processions that simultaneously expressed its evolving sense of Irishness but fitted in with local traditions and customs Subject Index of the Modern

A. C. Stewart,1972-06-18 The Science of Starving in Victorian Literature, Medicine, and Political Economy Andrew Mangham,2020-04-24 The Science of Starving in Victorian Literature Medicine and Political Economy is a reassessment of the languages and methodologies used throughout the nineteenth century for discussing extreme hunger in Britain Set against the providentialism of conservative political economy this study uncovers an emerging dynamic way of describing literal starvation in medicine and physiology No longer seen as a divine punishment for individual failings starvation became in the human sciences a pathology whose horrific symptoms registered failings of state and statute Providing new and historically rich readings of the works of Charles Kingsley Elizabeth Gaskell and Charles Dickens this book suggests that the realism we have come to associate with Victorian social problem fiction learned a vast amount from the empirical materialist objectives of the medical sciences and that within the mechanics of these intersections we find important re examinations of how we might think about this ongoing humanitarian issue The School in the Bush Albert Victor Murray, 1929
