Benjamin Franklin - "The First American"? Christian Imberi, 2006-12-21 Seminar paper from the year 2006 in the subject American Studies Culture and Applied Geography Friedrich Alexander University Erlangen Nuremberg course Transcendent Experience in American Literature language English abstract Benjamin Franklin is often called the father of America the fabulous American or the first American or as a anonymous reporter from 1856 wrote in the New York Times that Franklin was the incarnation of the true American character Franklin was the true type of the pure noble republican feeling of America Huang p 31 Born as the son of a soap and candle maker in 1706 he then became one of the most famous Americans in his time and is even today well known he is the embodiment of the American dream from the dishwasher to the millionaire Franklin was also an inventor writer and philosopher furthermore he was the first American who was internationally honoured and respected as politician and scientist He was also the only leading American who signed all four of the major documents that laid the foundation of the republic the Declaration of Independence 1776 the Treaties of Alliance 1778 the Peace Treaty between Great Britain and the United States 1783 and the Constitution of the United States 1787 Huang p 37 But what is it that made him the first American Which are the American attributes that Franklin embodies and in how far can one read these attributes and attitudes in Franklin's autobiography and other writings Was it his liberal and democratic sense his belief in science and in progress that made him ahead of his time Did his attributes shape the following generations and characterize the American Way even in nowadays Is that the reason to say Benjamin Franklin is the first American In his autobiography he describes his life in his own words and it is impressive how much attributes that are today considered to be American can be found in his autobiography and in some other writings of him So the focus will be the search for similarities between Franklin's character and the so-called Americanness or thing that are supposed to be American. The first very American thing about Benjamin Franklin is his way from rags to riches; it is also the first thing that comes to one's mind when thinking about America. He fulfilled the American Dream. He was born as the son of a soap and candle maker and became one of the most famous Americans at his time and even still in our time. But of course his fame and wealth didn't fall from the sky; it was his work ethic, his self-reliance, his self-education, and his endurance that brought him that far. This work ethic and endurance is very American and an example for Americanness.
