new study of Charles Dickens will make readers re examine his life and work in a completely different light First partly due to the massive digitalization of papers and letters in recent years Helena Kelly has unearthed new material about Dickens that simply wasn't available to his earlier biographers Second in an astonishing piece of archival detective work she has traced and then joined the dots on revelatory new details about his mental and physical health that as the reader will discover had a strong bearing on both his writing and his life and eventual death Together these have allowed her to come up with a striking hypothesis that the version of his life that Dickens chose to share with his public both during his lifetime and from beyond the grave in the authorized biography published shortly after his death was an elaborate exercise in reputation management Many of the supposed formative events in his life such as the twelve year old Dickens going to work in a blacking factory may not have been quite as honestly related as we have been led to believe And in many respects who can blame him Dickens's celebrity was on a scale almost unimaginable to any author writing today with the possible exception of J K Rowling and like many people who become suddenly famous he soon realized what a mixed blessing it was
