Economies and the Transformation of Landscape Lisa Cliggett, Christopher A. Pool, 2008

Economies and the Transformation of Landscape explores both the general and specific ways in which local economic ventures around the world such as mining, ranching and farming affect the environment.

Hiking Alone, 2008 A memoir recounts the author's travels to Arizona, Nebraska, Colorado's Weminuche Wilderness, the Sea of Cortez, Zuni Pueblo, Brazil and a vision quest along New Mexico's Mimbres River while describing her lobbying for wilderness in the midst of the troubled relationship between government and environmental sanctuaries and tracing her own development as a poet and person.

Indigenous Land Management in West Africa Kathleen M. Baker, 2000

The success of rural development schemes in Africa, particularly those involving land, is heavily dependent on understanding the local ecology. Any farmer knows this yet rarely has development project design catered adequately for the vicissitudes of the African environment. Although environmental unpredictability was recognized in the temperate zone by the mid-nineteenth century, the ecological theory which was subsequently developed and most widely accepted was based on concepts of norms and equilibria. History has shown that the application of such ecological assumptions to African environments is wholly inappropriate. This book argues that many methods used by West African smallholder farmers and pastoralists are properly adapted to the region's unpredictable physical environment. Field examples from the semi-arid and humid zones demonstrate the nature of environmental variability and the skill of indigenous farmers and pastoralists in exploiting this. It is thus argued that development planners should, where possible, model development schemes on the more successful, ecologically sound methods of indigenous land management.

The Oxford Handbook of Public Heritage Theory and Practice Angela M. Labrador, Neil Asher Silberman, 2018-07-11

The field of cultural heritage is no longer solely dependent on the expertise of art and architectural historians, archaeologists, conservators, curators and site and museum administrators. It has dramatically expanded across disciplinary boundaries and social contexts, with even the basic definition of what constitutes cultural heritage being widened far beyond the traditional categories of architecture, artifacts, archives and art. Heritage now includes vernacular architecture, intangible cultural practices, knowledge and language, performances and rituals, as well as cultural landscapes. Heritage has also become increasingly entangled with the broader social, political and economic contexts in which heritage is created managed transmitted protected or even destroyed Heritage protection now encompasses a growing set of methodological approaches whose objectives are not necessarily focused upon the maintenance of material fabric which has traditionally been cultural heritage's primary concern The Oxford Handbook of Public Heritage Theory and Practice charts some of the major sites of convergence between the humanities and the social sciences where new disciplinary perspectives are being brought to bear on heritage These convergences have the potential to provide the interdisciplinary expertise needed not only to critique but also to achieve the intertwined intellectual political and socioeconomic goals of cultural heritage in the twenty first century This volume highlights the potential contributions of development studies political science anthropology management studies human geography ecology psychology sociology cognitive studies and education to heritage studies Participatory Action Research in Natural Resource Management Christian Castellonet, Carl F.

Jordan, 2004-06-02 This work evaluates the merits of a widely used approach to natural resource management participatory action research PAR an approach to resource management that strives to link researchers with farmers and other local residents whose lives are effected by long range conservation programmes The authors begin the book with the history of PAR and then use a variety of case studies that chronicle sustainable development efforts in Brazil They evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of these efforts and suggest specific ways to improve on future PAR efforts Why Did Ancient

Civilizations Fail? Scott A J Johnson, 2016-09-19 Ideas abound as to why certain complex societies collapsed in the past including environmental change subsistence failure fluctuating social structure and lack of adaptability Why Did Ancient Civilizations Fail evaluates the current theories in this important topic and discusses why they offer only partial explanations of the failure of past civilizations This engaging book offers a new theory of collapse that of social hubris Through an examination of Mesopotamian Egyptian Roman Maya Inca and Aztec societies Johnson persuasively argues that hubris blinded many ancient peoples to evidence that would have allowed them to adapt and he further considers how this has implications for contemporary societies Comprehensive and well written this volume serves as an ideal text for undergraduate courses on ancient complex societies as well as appealing to the scholar interested in societal collapse

Agricultural Strategies Joyce Marcus, Charles Stanish, 2006-12-31 This volume brings together a diverse set of new studies archaeological ethnohistoric and ethnographic that focus on agricultural intensification and hydraulic systems around the world Fifteen chapters written by many of the world's leading experts combine extensive regional overviews of agricultural histories with in depth case studies In this volume are chapters on agriculture in the Middle East South Asia Europe Oceania Mesoamerica and South America A wide range of theoretical perspectives and approaches are used to provide a framework for agricultural land use and water management in a variety of cultural and historical contexts This book covers the co evolutionary relationships among sociopolitical structure agriculture land use and water control Agricultural Strategies is an invaluable resource for those engaged in ongoing debates about the role of intensification and agriculture in the past and present      Social Memory and History Jacob J. Climo, Maria G. Cattell, 2002-10-23 In Social Memory and History a group of anthropologists sociologists social linguists gerontologists and historians explore the ways in which memory reconstructs the past and constructs the present A substantial introduction by the editors outlines the key issues in the understanding of social memory its nature and process its personal and political implications the crisis in memory and the relationship between social and individual memory Ten cross cultural case studies groups ranging from Kiowa songsters Burgundian farmers elderly Philadelphia whites Chilean political activists American immigrants to Israel and Irish working class women then explore how social memory transmits culture or contests it at the individual community and national levels in both tangible and symbolic spheres      Anthropology Nicholas Croce, 2015-12-15 This authoritative guide offers readers a comprehensive look into the world of anthropology and its related sciences The book covers the essential areas of the field including its history The major branches of the field are also discussed including cultural and social anthropology as well as archaeology It also explores the study of the discipline around the world through urban medical and applied anthropology This is a perfect resource for anyone interested in world cultures and the history of different peoples      Family Farms: Survival and Prospect Harold Brookfield, Helen Parsons, 2007-11-08 Marx Lenin and Kautsky all regarded family farming as doomed to be split into capitalist farms and proletarian labour Most modern economists regard family farming as an archaic form of production organization destined to give way to agribusiness Family Farms refutes these notions and analyses the manner in which family farmers have been able to operate with success in both developed and developing countries using examples wherever these are illuminating This book begins by reviewing theoretical arguments about agricultural structures and defines family farming This is followed by five vignettes about farming in the first half of the twentieth century The authors analyse the conditions of access to land and water labour livestock tools and seed and review marketing arrangements and how they have changed since 1900 A three chapter review of evolving policies in the North Atlantic countries in the communist states and in the developing countries leads to a discussion of the impact of neo liberalism New issues of the farmer as steward of the environment are explored as well as modern ideas about de agrarianization and a discussion of land reform tracing the experience of Mexico and Brazil In two final chapters the more positive approach of pluriactivity is discussed and followed by a review of organic farming as a principal modern innovation New political organizations representing family farming are described and their demands are discussed with empathy but in a sceptical manner Family farming is an adaptable and resilient form of production organization and these qualities have allowed it to survive The future will be no easier than the past yet family farming continues to flourish in most contexts This book will be useful for researchers students and lecturers interested in Development Studies Rural Studies and Geography and Anthropology as well as general readers who have an interest in farming      Indians, Markets, and Rainforests Ricardo Godoy, 2001-08-01 This book addresses two important and related questions does participation in a market economy help or hurt indigenous peoples and how does it affect the conservation of tropical rainforest flora and fauna Oddly there have been few quantitative studies that have addressed these issues Ricardo Godoy's research takes an important step toward rectifying this oversight by investigating five different lowland Amerindian societies of tropical Latin America all of which are experiencing deep changes as they modernize Godoy examines the effect of markets on a broad range of areas including health conservation of flora and fauna leisure folk knowledge reciprocity and private time preference He concludes that contrary to considerable anthropological theory the effect of markets on the quality of life and the rainforest are often unclear or benign Godoy uses multivariate techniques to examine the changes modernization has had on many indicators of the quality of life and the environment and concludes that the seeds of socioeconomic differentiation may already lie dormant in simple economies The impact of modernization on lowland Amerindians is a topic of great concern to anthropologists researchers and policymakers in developing nations and this book is a significant contribution to the debate about the likely future of indigenous people
