Beneath the Surface C.C. Reed, 2011-05-24 C C Reeds first collection of poetry details her coming of age in all of its glory It is a colorful memoir of how she found herself and learned to love who she is through joys pains and ugly happenings alike C C has been writing and collecting her poetry for this lyrical autobiography of sorts for well over twenty years Thus some of the works included such as Sunshine and Dad Can You Hear Me were written as early as seven years old when she first discovered the natural rhythm of her words Her poetry is real to the point and is capable of drawing the reader into the complex emotions she experienced on her journey to womanhood C C has a unique style and though much of her poetry lacks actual rhyme and rhythm she seems to dance with the words as they leave her pen enticing readers of all ages and stages of life to join in and sing along to her music as she pours out the soul of her story Recovering the Black Female Body Michael Bennett, Vanessa D. Dickerson, 2001 Recovering the Black Female Body recognizes the pressing need to highlight through scholarship the vibrant energy of African American women s attempts to wrest control of the physical and symbolic construction of their bodies away from the distortions of others Ebony, 1998-08 EBONY is the flagship magazine of Johnson Publishing Founded in 1945 by John H Johnson it still maintains the highest global circulation of any African American focused magazine Growing Up Postmodern Ronald Strickland, 2002-06-25 This collection takes its inspiration from Paul Goodman s Growing Up Absurd a landmark critique of American culture at the end of the 1950s Goodman called for a revival of social investment in urban planning public welfare workplace democracy free speech racial harmony sexual freedom popular culture and education to produce a society that could inspire young people and an adult society worth joining In postmodernity Goodman s enlightenment era vision of social progress has been judged obsolete For many postmodern critics subjectivity is formed and expressed not through social investment but through consumption the freedom to consume has replaced political empowerment But the power to consume is distributed very unevenly and even for the affluent it never fulfills the desire produced by the advertising industry The contributors to this volume focus on adverse social conditions that confront young people in postmodernity such as the relentless pressure to consume social disinvestment in education harsh responses to youth crime and the continuing climate of intolerance that falls heavily on the young In essays on education youth crime counseling protest movements fiction identity formation and popular culture the contributors look for moments of resistance to the subsumption of youth culture under the logic of global capitalism
