The Egyptian Pop-up:

The Egyptian Labor Corps Kyle J. Anderson, 2021-12-14 During World War I the British Empire enlisted half a million young men predominantly from the countryside of Egypt in the Egyptian Labor Corps ELC and put them to work handling military logistics in Europe and the Middle East British authorities reneged on their promise not to draw Egyptians into the war and as Kyle Anderson shows the ELC was seen by many in Egypt as a form of slavery The Egyptian Labor Corps tells the forgotten story of these young men culminating in the essential part they came to play in the 1919 Egyptian Revolution Combining sources from archives in four countries Anderson explores Britain's role in Egypt during this period and how the ELC came to be as well as the experiences and hardships these men endured As he examines the ways they coped through music theater drugs religion strikes and mutiny he illustrates how Egyptian nationalists seeing their countrymen in a state akin to slavery began to grasp that they had been racialized as people of color Documenting the history of the ELC and its work during the First World War The Egyptian Labor Corps also provides a fascinating reinterpretation of the 1919 revolution through the lens of critical race theory the development of the world's first police force Mediterranean Collections in Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand Candace Richards, Elizabeth Minchin, 2025-04-04 This volume brings together academics and museum professionals responsible for ancient Mediterranean collections across Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand to report on their collections legacies and their ongoing value for research education and community engagement in the twenty-first century. An introductory chapter offers an overview of the themes that unite these Mediterranean collections: their colonial legacies, their more recent history, and the network of scholars who have fostered their development. Subsequent chapters offer thematic case studies from the perspective of curators, museum professionals, educators, and researchers working with collections across Australasia. They explore several themes, including museum archaeology, provenance studies, pedagogy, and participatory programming and engagement, and they address two issues that are of interest to everyone who engages with museum collections today: restitution and the ethical management and display of human remains. Taken together, these contributions situate the region's collections on a global scale, highlighting their continued relevance in the present and for the future. The volume includes a distribution guide to all known ancient Mediterranean collections in Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand, a much-needed resource for students, provenance researchers, and museum professionals. This volume will be of interest to researchers in Mediterranean archaeology and related disciplines, to museum studies scholars, and postgraduate students and to a general audience.

Gary Warnaby, Charlotte Shi, 2017-12-28 This SpringerBrief offers an academic perspective on the trend of pop-up retailing. It analyzes this temporary, retail-oriented setting designed to foster a direct customer-brand interaction for a limited period, often with an explicitly promotional or communicative purpose. Adopting a managerial approach, it explores the use of pop-up retailing as a means of facilitating strategic growth by retail brands. In addition, it draws on theory from retail store environments and atmospherics, customer experience management, and event management to provide an in-depth academic analysis of the planning and implementation issues arising from the inherent ephemerality of pop-up activities to achieve the strategic objectives of retail brands. The authors provide an overview of the entire pop-up lifecycle using an organizational schema that is split into four sequential stages: strategic objectives, pre-pop-up, actual pop-up experience, and the post-pop-up stage. The key decision areas and activities incorporated in each of these stages are also outlined. Term Paper Resource

Egyptian Archaeology and the Twenty-First Century Museum Alice Stevenson, 2022-09-08 This Element addresses the cultural production of ancient Egypt in the museum as a mixture of multiple pasts and presents that cohere around collections their artefacts documentation storage research and display Its four sections examine how ideas about the past are formed by museum assemblages how their histories of acquisition and documentation shape interpretation the range of materials that comprise them the influence of their geographical framing and the moments of remaking that might be possible Throughout the importance of critical approaches to interpretation is underscored reasserting the museum as a site of active research and experiment rather than only exhibitionary product or communicative media It argues for a multi directional approach to museum work that seeks to reveal the inter relations of collection histories and which has implications not just for museum representation and documentation but also for archaeological practice more broadly
