II Those under II are based on the succeeding instead of on the preceding chapter They are inductive in character calling upon the student to observe investigate and think on questions arising in the course of his practice Similarly the exercises on correct usage precede instead of follow the lists of improprieties and solecisms Rhetoric is an art and cannot be taught solely by the inductive method but anything that will awaken the student's interest in what is coming that will keep him ahead of the text must surely approve itself to teachers The exercises under I provide themes drill on the text criticism of themes by the class and study and analysis of selections from the best prose writers The exercises are numerous and vary in difficulty as well as in purpose It is hardly expected that any one class will perform them all it will doubtless often be wise to omit many and center attention on a few It is hoped however that the exercises are of a character to suggest to the teacher many additions and variations About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Introduction to Rhetoric William B.
