The Collected Poems of Delmore Schwartz Delmore Schwartz, 2024-04-02 The first complete collection of the poetry of Delmore Schwartz the most underrated poet of the twentieth century John Berryman When Delmore Schwartz published his first short story In Dreams Begin Responsibilities in Partisan Review in 1937 he became an instant literary celebrity After the appearance of his first book by the same name he was inundated with praise The famed poet Allen Tate wrote to him Your poetic style is beyond any doubt the first real innovation that we've had since Eliot and Pound and T S Eliot himself wrote Schwartz a letter asking him to compose more poetry The brilliant start of his career is matched perhaps only by its tragic end a lonely death after an extended period of alcoholism depression and derangement Today more than fifty years after his death in 1966 Schwartz is often remembered for the tragedy of his life rather than for the innovation and sad brilliance of his greatest work This book brings together all of Schwartz's poetry for the very first time from his groundbreaking debut collection to his unpublished late work which he kept writing until his death Accompanied by Ben Mazer's illustrative notes and introduction The Collected Poems of Delmore Schwartz offers readers the long awaited opportunity to rediscover one of the most influential and original poets of the twentieth century As Mazer writes in his introduction It is the poems that count now And it is the glory of the poems that survives here awaiting new life

The Afterlife of Property Jeff Nunokawa, 2009-01-10 In The Afterlife of Property Jeff Nunokawa investigates the conviction passed on by the Victorian novel that a woman's love is the only fortune a man can count on to last Taking for his example four texts Charles Dickens's Little Dorrit and Dombey and Son and George Eliot's Daniel Deronda and Silas Marner Nunokawa studies the diverse ways that the Victorian novel imagines women as property removed from the uncertainties of the marketplace Along the way he notices how the categories of economics gender sexuality race and fiction define one another in the Victorian novel If the novel figures women as safe property Nunokawa argues the novel figures safe property as a woman And if the novel identifies the angel of the house the desexualized subject of Victorian fantasies of ideal womanhood as safe property it identifies various types of fiction illicit sexualities and foreign races with the enemy of such property the commodity form Nunokawa shows how these convergences of fiction sexuality and race with the commodity form are part of a scapegoat scenario in which the otherwise ubiquitous instabilities of the marketplace can be contained and expunged clearing the way for secure possession The Afterlife of Property addresses literary and cultural theory gender studies and gay and lesbian studies
