Century ,1984 Educating Americans for the 21st Century: Source materials National Science Board (U.S.). Commission on Precollege Education in Mathematics, Science, and Technology,1983 Leading experts in the fields of science mathematics and education present a plan for improving mathematics science and technology education for all American elementary and secondary students so that their achievement is the best in the world by 1995 The Commission believes that while individual American schools and students excel in science and mathematics the average American student is said to need a much firmer grounding at the elementary and secondary school levels It notes that the most serious problem is a severe shortage of qualified teachers Makes a number of recommendations and calls for stronger leadership on this issue through such means as a National Education Council reporting to the President Student Success Modeling Raymond V. Padilla,2023-07-03 This book focuses on one of the key questions in education What determines a student s success Based on twenty years of work on student success Ray Padilla here presents two related models he has developed that both provide a framework for understanding success and indicate how it can be enhanced and replicated The research and theory that inform his models are covered in detail He defines student success simply as progress through a program of study such that the student and others expect him or her to complete it and be promoted to the next level or graduate Rather than focusing on the reasons for failure or drop out his approach focuses on understanding the factors that account for student success and that enable many students some of them under the most challenging circumstances to complete all program requirements and graduate The models provide schools and colleges with an analytical tool to uncover the reasons for student success so that they can develop strategies and practices that will enable more students to emulate their successful peers They address the characteristics of the students such as motivation and engagement the ability to surmount barriers and persistence and similarly surface the characteristics of teachers the educational institution its resources and the contexts in which they interact The process provides administrators with a clear and appropriate strategy for action at the level of each individual unit or subpopulation Recognizing the need to develop general models of student success that also can be applied locally to specific situations and contexts the book presents Padilla s Expertise Model of Student Success EMSS that can be applied to general populations as well as the Local Student Success Model LSSM that can be used to drive local institutional strategies to improve student success The book demonstrates how the models have been applied in settings as diverse as a minority high school a community college and an Hispanic Serving Institution and for such purposes as comparing a high performing and a non high performing elementary school Contributors Kimberly S Barker is an assistant professor at Texas A M University Kingsville System Center San Antonio She is currently working in the College of Education Department of Curriculum and Instruction Mary J Miller is the Instructional Compliance Director for the Edgewood Independent School District in San Antonio Texas Prior to this appointment she served as an elementary school principal for ten years George E Norton is the Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs for Admissions Orientation Transition Services at The University of Texas at San Antonio Ralph Mario Wirth is an administrator and director of educational planning at The San Antonio School for Inquiry and Creativity as well as lead researcher for the Democratic Schools Research Institute Inc Catalog of Copyright Entries. Asian English Language Classrooms Handoyo Puji Widodo, Alistair Wood, Deepti Gupta, 2017-06-14. The teaching of English in the Asian context is always challenging and dynamic because both teachers and learners have diverse linguistic and cultural backgrounds. Equally important where English is not widely used outside the classroom, English language classrooms are an authentic site of learner engagement. For these reasons, for all those concerned with contemporary English language teaching, ELT in Asia: Asian English Language Classrooms Where Theory and Practice Meet provides an account of theoretical orientations and practices in the teaching of English to multilingual speakers whose primary language is not English. While covering the fundamental ELT areas, e.g. the teaching of language skills, educational literature, the use of technology in ELT, the role of pragmatics in ELT, social psychology of the language classroom, and language classroom management, with which every language teacher and teacher trainer must be concerned, this volume showcases how particular orientations shape ELT practices. We believe that practicing English teachers must have a heightened awareness of the theory behind their practice. At the same time, the theoretical stance must be firmly anchored in actual classrooms. Containing newly commissioned chapters written by well-regarded and emerging scholars, this book will appeal not only to beginning teachers or teachers in training but also to established teachers around Asia where English is used as a lingua franca. If you are a student teacher of English or an English teacher who would like to see what other progressive teachers like you are doing across Asia, this is the book you have been looking for.
