Smith, 2010-01-14 Anthony Smith's important work on the concept of social change first published in 1973 puts forward the paradigm of historical change as an alternative to the functionalist theory of evolutionary change He shows that in attempting to provide a theory of social change functionalism reveals itself as a species of frozen evolutionism Functionalism he argues is unable to cope with the mechanisms of historical transitions or account for novelty and emergence it confuses classification of variations with explanation of processes and its endogenous view of change prevents it from coming to grips with the real events and transformations of the historical record In his assessment of functionalism Dr Smith traces its explanatory failures in its accounts of the developments of civilisation modernisation and revolution He concludes that the study of evolution is largely irrelevant to the investigation of social change He proposes instead an exogenous paradigm of social change which places the study of contingent historical events at its centre responding to questions of globalization and the effects of societal and economic change on the individual This book explores this trend by investigating different thematic and aesthetic strategies and alternative methods of film production and distribution Functioning both as a product and as an agent of globalizing processes this new cinema mediates and influences important political and social debates The contributors illuminate these processes through their analyses of cinema's intervention in discourses on such concepts as national cinema the effects of globalization on social mobility and the emergence of a global culture The essays illustrate the variety and inventiveness of contemporary Austrian and German filmmaking and highlight the complicated interdependencies between global developments and local specificities They confirm a broader trend toward a more complex critical and formally diverse cinematic scene This book offers insights into the strategies employed by German and Austrian filmmakers to position themselves between the commercial pressures of the film industry and the desire to mediate or even attempt to affect social change It will be of interest to scholars in film studies cultural studies and European studies
