The Atrisk Infant:

The "at Risk" Infant Shaul Harel, Yehuda Shapira, 1980 ACoRN: Acute Care of at-Risk Newborns Jill E. Boulton, Kevin Coughlin, Debra O'Flaherty, Alfonso Solimano, 2021-03-26

The Acute Care of at Risk Newborns ACoRN program trains health care providers to stabilize that most challenging and enigmatic of medical patients the unwell newborn. The ACoRN mnemonic defines stabilization steps and chapter structure: Alerting Signs, Core Steps, Organization of Care, Response, Next Steps, and Specific Diagnosis and Management. Each chapter includes educational objectives, key concepts, learning points, and at least one case scenario with questions and answers to reinforce content and learnings. This book is written for any health professional who may be required to participate in the stabilization of sick or preterm babies within their scope of practice.

Infants at Risk Richard B. Kearsley, Irving E. Sigel, 2021-09-30. What methodologies within the behavioral sciences have clinical application for the diagnosis and management of high risk and handicapped infants? Originally published in 1979, this volume not only deals with this issue but illustrates the contributions that behavioral science may have offered those called upon to evaluate the cognitive consequences of perinatal high risk factors at the time. The inadequacies of some measures used to assess intellectual competence in retardates are juxtaposed with the sophisticated methodologies that may be employed to document early mental abilities. Also included are assessment procedures that bypass reliance on neuromotor performance, imitation, or language production. The authors draw attention to the discontinuous nature of cognitive development, to the possibility that mental and motor development may proceed independently, and to the plasticity of the developing CNS which may overcome early deficits if underlying competences are recognized and exposed to appropriate stimulation. Here is a volume that does not simply catalog the nature of the child's accomplishments and deficits but emphasizes the need to examine his potential for learning and offers various methodologies that may be of value in documenting the child's continuing cognitive development. This book is a re-issue originally published in 1979. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

Infants at risk United States. Congress. House. Committee on Government Operations. Human Resources and Intergovernmental Relations Subcommittee, 1988 The Activity Kit for Babies and Toddlers at Risk Deborah Fein, Molly Helt, Lynn Brennan, Marianne Barton, 2015-12-04. Suspecting that your baby or toddler may have autism spectrum disorder or another developmental delay can be scary and overwhelming. But there is a lot you can do to help even while waiting for an evaluation or early intervention. With the right tools, everyday tasks can be terrific opportunities for building critical social and communication skills. Start at the kitchen table, bathtub, or shopping cart. In this easy-to-navigate guide, leading experts present more than 100 games and activities designed to support development in children from birth to age 3. Your child's daily routines are transformed into learning opportunities that promote crucial abilities like how to imitate others or use simple hand gestures to convey wants and needs. As a parent, you are the most important person in your child's life. Now you

Infants' Understanding and Production of Goal-Directed Actions in the Context of Social and Object-Related Interactions
Daniela Corbetta, Jacqueline Fagard, 2017-09-05 Since the discovery of mirror neurons the study of human infant goal directed actions and object manipulation has burgeoned into new and exciting research directions A number of infant studies have begun emphasizing the social context of action to understand what infants can infer when looking at others performing goal directed actions or manipulating objects Others have begun addressing how looking at actions in a social context or even simply looking at objects in the immediate environment influence the way infants learn to direct their own actions on objects Researchers have even begun investigating what aspects of goal directed actions and object manipulation infants imitate when such actions are being modeled by a social partner or they have been asking which cues infants use to predict others actions A growing understanding of how infants learn to reach perceive information for reaching and attend social cues for action has become central to many recent studies These new lines of investigation and others have benefited from the use of a broad range of new investigative techniques Eye tracking brains imaging techniques and new methodologies have been used to scrutinize how infants look process and use information to act themselves on objects and or the social world and to infer predict and recognize goal directed actions outcomes from others This Frontiers Research topic brings together empirical reports literature reviews and theory and hypothesis papers that tap into some of these exciting developmental questions about how infants perceive understand and perform goal directed actions broadly defined The papers included either stress the neural motor or perceptual aspects of infants behavior or any combination of those dimensions as related to the development of early cognitive understanding and performance of goal directed actions

Placing Infants at Risk United States. Congress. House. Select Committee on Children, Youth, and Families, 1986

Nutrition Support for Infants and Children at Risk Richard J. Cooke, Yvan Vandenplas, Ulrich Wahn, 2007 Adequate nutrition is especially important during infancy and childhood where even short periods of malnutrition have long lasting effects on growth development and health in adult life There are several high risk scenarios for the development of malnutrition which are the focus of the current publication Atopic diseases gastrointestinal disorders and preterm delivery For the pediatric allergist it is important to understand the mechanisms regulating IgE responses to food proteins since they may also be the earliest markers for the atopic march As breastfeeding seems to have only limited effects regarding the atopic march other measures to modulate infantile immune responses have to be taken including the use of hypoallergenic formulae or the addition of probiotics or prebiotics to infant formulae The second part of this book highlights the functional properties of nutrition with regard to diseases of the gastrointestinal tract and the ensuing chronic alterations of gastrointestinal function Topics addressed include the molecular basis of some diseases main causes of and nutritional measures in chronic enteropathy including the role of parenteral and enteral nutrition stressed mucosa and the role of nutrition in cholestatic liver disease Nowadays smaller and more immature infants are surviving but the smaller the infant the greater the accrued deficit as nutritional needs change with advancing maturity and one formulation may not meet all requirements Furthermore there are no sensitive accurate and precise measures of nutritional outcome The net effect of these uncertainties is that all very low birth weight infants are growth retarded at hospital discharge Strategies for improving growth in these high risk infants are at the center of the last part of this publication
