Mulrooney,2022-03-15 A revealing work of public history that shows how communities remember their pasts in different ways to fit specific narratives Race Place and Memory charts the ebb and flow of racial violence in Wilmington North Carolina from the 1730s to the present day Margaret Mulrooney argues that white elites have employed public spaces memorials and celebrations to maintain the status quo The port city has long celebrated its white colonial revolutionary origins memorialized Decoration Day and hosted Klan parades Other events such as the Azalea Festival have attempted to present a false picture of racial harmony to attract tourists And yet the revolutionary acts of Wilmington s African American citizens who also demanded freedom first from slavery and later from Jim Crow discrimination have gone unrecognized As a result beneath the surface of daily life collective memories of violence and alienation linger among the city s black population Mulrooney describes her own experiences as a public historian involved in the centennial commemoration of the so called

Wilmington Race Riot of 1898 which perpetuated racial conflicts in the city throughout the twentieth century She shows how despite organizers best efforts a white authored narrative of the riot s contested origins remains Mulrooney makes a case for public history projects that recognize the history making authority of all community members and prompts us to reconsider the memories we inherit A volume in the series Cultural Heritage Studies edited by Paul A Shackel Publication of the paperback edition made possible by a Sustaining the Humanities through the American Rescue Plan grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities
