The Emerging Worker William A. Westley, Margaret W. Westley, 1971-01-01 The Emerging Worker William A. Westley, Margaret W. Westley, 1971-01-01 Muslim Societies in the Age of Mass Consumption Johanna Pink, 2020-07-13 In the course of the 20th century hardly a region in the world has escaped the triumph of global consumerism Muslim societies are no exception Globalized brands are pervasive and the landscapes of consumption are changing at a breathtaking pace Yet Muslim consumers are not passive victims of the homogenizing forces of globalization They actively appropriate and adapt the new commodities and spaces of consumption to their own needs and integrate them into their culture Simultaneously this culture is reshaped and reinvented to comply with the mechanisms of conspicuous consumption It is these processes that this volume seeks to address from an interdisciplinary perspective The papers in this anthology present innovative approaches to a wide range of issues that have so far barely received scholarly attention The topics range from the changing spaces of consumption to Islamic branding from the marketing of religious music to the consumption patterns of Muslim minority groups This anthology uses consumption as a prism through which to view and better understand the enormous transformations that Muslim societies Middle Eastern South East Asian as well as diasporic ones have undergone in the past few decades The emerging worker, 1971 Monthly Labor Review, 1971 Publishes in depth articles on labor subjects current labor statistics information about current labor contracts and book reviews The State of the Masses Richard F. Power, Norms, and Inflation Michael R. Smith,2017-09-29 Explanations for inflation had for a long time been ceded to the purview of economists The acceleration in rates of inflation within advanced economies during the 1960s and 1970s however prompted sociologists and political scientists to attempt their own accounts for this phenomenon There are two major competing explanations of the postwar inflation One most commonly held by economists is that inflation has been produced by governments through a combination of policy errors and cynical manipulation of policy for electoral purposes The other often advanced by sociologists and political scientists as an alternative is that inflation has been an outcome of class conflict In his study that ranges widely over the literature in the relevant disciplines Smith examines the strengths and weaknesses of each account with particular attention to the evidence presented in support of class conflict explanations He concludes that on balance the policy error cynical manipulation explanation is better supported than its class conflict rival The clarity with which Smith presents these rival accounts and the critical rigor of his scrutiny make this a work of interest to advanced students in macroeconomic theory and to policy makers

Nightingale, 1982-12-15 This book begins with a historical review of how authority in the Canadian workplace has changed over the past century It proceeds to outline a theory of organization which provides a broad conceptual framework for the empirical analysis which follows This theory is based on five concepts the values of organizational members the administrative structure of the organization the interpersonal and intergroup processes the reactions and adjustments of organization members the social political economic and cultural environments of the organization A sample of 20 industrial organizations was selected to examine the effects of significant employee participation and to test the theory They are matched pairs ten permit some form of participation and ten similar in size location industry union non union status and work technology follow conventional hierarchical design The resulting data demonstrate that greater productivity results from employee participation in decisions relating to their work in productivity bonuses and in profit sharing and employee share ownership plans The New Acquisitive Society Ferdynand Zweig, 1976 Canadian Books in Print , 1973
