Mongolian Film Music Dr Lucy Rees, 2015-11-28 In 1936 the Mongolian socialist government decreed the establishment of a film industry with the principal aim of disseminating propaganda to the largely nomadic population The government sent promising young rural Mongolian musicians to Soviet conservatoires to be trained formally as composers On their return they utilised their traditional Mongolian musical backgrounds and the musical skills learned during their studies to compose scores to the 167 propaganda films produced by the state film studio between 1938 and 1990 Lucy M Rees provides an overview of the rich mosaic of music genres that appeared in these film soundtracks including symphonic music influenced by Western art music modified forms of Mongolian traditional music and a new genre known as professional music that combined both symphonic and Mongolian traditional characteristics Case studies of key composers and film scores are presented demonstrating the influence of cultural policy on film music and showing how film scores complemented the ideological message of the films There are discussions of films that celebrate the 1921 Revolution that led to Mongolia becoming a socialist nation those that foreshadowed the 1990 Democratic Revolution that drew the socialist era to a close and the diverse range of films and scores produced after 1990 in the aftermath of the socialist regime

A Song for the Horses Kip Hutchins, 2025-10-21 As permafrost in Siberia continues to melt and the steppe in the Gobi turns to desert people in Mongolia are faced with overlapping climate crises

Some nomadic herders describe climate change as the end of a world. They are quick to add that the world has ended before for Indigenous people in North Asia as waves of colonialism have left the steppe with a complicated web of apocalypses. A Song for the Horses by K G Hutchins examines cases in which people respond to the pressures of climate change by drawing on cultural heritage to foster social resiliency. Hutchins's ethnographic research spanning more than a decade provides a vivid and intimate portrayal of Mongolian life. Musicians use the morin khuur or horse fiddle to engage with the subjectivities and agencies of nonhuman animals and other beings. This work is a significant contribution to the posthuman turn in social sciences engaging with theories from prominent scholars such as Donna Haraway and Anna Tsing. As climate change continues to impact communities worldwide, this book offers a unique perspective on how cultural heritage can be mobilized to address environmental challenges, providing valuable lessons for global efforts to build sustainable and resilient futures. At the intersection of music, environment, and posthumanism, A Song for the Horses shows how Mongolian musicians use cultural traditions to imagine and build toward alternative futures beyond climate change and neoliberalism.

The Environmental Dimension of Asian Security In-t'aek Hyön, Miranda Alice Schreurs, 2007. Northeast Asia is a region with highly disparate levels of industrialization and political systems. It also contains some very troubling security flashpoints: the Taiwan Strait, the Korean Peninsula, and the East China Sea. China's rapacious quest for energy and rapid industrial expansion have led to intense international competition with Japan and the United States and internal instability as well. North Korea poses two distinct environmental security threats: famine refugees and the regime's use of nuclear blackmail for subsidized energy. Yet there is very little regional cooperation despite the need to manage disputes over energy, natural resources, and pervasive pollution. The Environmental Dimension of Asian Security examines these issues through a regional environmental security complex that explores the potential for greater intersubjective understandings of regional environmental and natural resource problems and greater institutional collaboration and management.

Challenges Facing Chinese Political Development Sujian Guo, Baogang Guo, 2007-01-01. Examining the challenges of Chinese political development from a holistic perspective, each of the authors emphasizes a particular dimension of political culture, political economy, foreign policy, and environmental and social challenges.

Routledge Handbook of Climate Change Impacts on Indigenous Peoples and Local Communities Victoria Reyes-García, 2023-12-26. This Handbook examines the diverse ways in which climate change impacts Indigenous Peoples and local communities and considers their response to these changes. While there is well-established evidence that the climate of the Earth is changing, the scarcity of instrumental data oftentimes challenges scientists' ability to detect such impacts in remote and marginalized areas of the world or in areas with scarce data. Bridging this gap, this Handbook draws on field research among Indigenous Peoples and local communities distributed across different climatic zones and relying on different livelihood activities to analyse their reports of and responses to climate change impacts. It includes contributions from a range of authors from different nationalities, disciplinary backgrounds, and positionalities, thus reflecting the diversity of approaches in the field The Handbook is organised in two parts Part I examines the diverse ways in which climate change alone or in interaction with other drivers of environmental change affects Indigenous Peoples and local communities Part II examines how Indigenous Peoples and local communities are locally adapting their responses to these impacts Overall this book highlights Indigenous and local knowledge systems as an untapped resource which will be vital in deepening our understanding of the effects of climate change The Routledge Handbook of Climate Change Impacts on Indigenous Peoples and Local Communities will be an essential reference text for students and scholars of climate change anthropology environmental studies ethnobiology and Indigenous studies

Socialist and Post-Socialist Mongolia Simon Wickhamsmith, Phillip P. Marzluf, 2021-03-03 This book re examines the origins of modern Mongolian nationalism discussing nation building as sponsored by the socialist Mongolian People s Revolutionary Party and the Soviet Union and emphasizing in particular the role of the arts and the humanities It considers the politics and society of the early revolutionary period and assesses the ways in which ideas about nationhood were constructed in a response to Soviet socialism It goes on to analyze the consequences of socialist cultural and social transformations on pastoral Kazakh and other identities and outlines the implications of socialist nation building on post socialist Mongolian national identity Overall Socialist and Post Socialist Mongolia highlights how Mongolia s population of widely scattered seminomadic pastoralists posed challenges for socialist administrators attempting to create a homogenous mass nation of individual citizens who share a set of cultural beliefs historical memories collective symbols and civic ideas additionally the book addresses the changes brought more recently by democratic governance Chapters 2 and 3 of this book are freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Comparative Metaphysics Pierre Charbonnier, Gildas Salmon, Peter Skafish, 2016-12-22 How does the ontological turn in anthropology redefine what modern Western ontology is in practice and offer the beginnings of a new ontological pluralism On a planet that is increasingly becoming a single metaphysically homogeneous world anthropology remains one of the few disciplines that recognizes that being has been thought with very different concepts and can still be rendered in terms quite different than those placed on it today Yet despite its critical acuity even the most philosophically oriented anthropology often remains segregated from philosophical discussions aimed at rethinking such terms What would come of an anthropology more fully committed to being a source of post philosophical concepts What would happen to philosophy if it began to think with and through these concepts How finally does comparison condition these two projects This book addresses these questions from a variety of perspectives all of which nonetheless hold in common the view that philosophy has been displaced and altered by the modes of thought of other collectives An international group of authors including Eduardo Viveiros de Castro Marilyn Strathern Philippe Descola and Bruno Latour explore how the new anthropology philosophy conjuncture opens new horizons of critique

Property in Question Caroline Humphrey, Katherine

Verdery,2020-06-08 How has it come about that indigenous cultures body parts and sequences of musical notes are considered property How has the movement from collective to privatized systems affected notions of property At what point in transaction chains do native cultures indigenous medicines or cyberdata become objects and therefore propertized and what are the social economic and ethical considerations for such transformations Addressing these hotly contested issues and many more Property in Question interrogates the very concept of property and what is happening to it in the contemporary world in case studies ranging from Romania to Kazakhstan Africa to North America The book examines not only the changing character of the property concept but also its ideological foundations and political usages Authors address bio transactions music copyright cyberspace oil prospecting debates over privatization of land and factories and dilemmas arising with new forms of ownership of businesses Offering a fresh perspective on contemporary economic transformation this volume is a long overdue investigation of the power of the private property concept as well as an exploration of how the global economy may be subtly even invisibly changing what property means and how we relate to it World Resources 2000-2001 C.
