Women in American Cartography Judith Tyner, 2019-11-13 Although women have been involved in mapping throughout history, their story has largely been hidden. The standard histories of cartography have focused on men. A woman's name is rarely found. In Women in American Cartography, Judith Tyner argues that women were not deliberately erased but overlooked because of the types of maps they made and the jobs they held. Tyner looks at over fifty women exemplars in American cartography and their maps. She looks at teachers who made school atlases in the early nineteenth century, at pictorial mapmakers and book illustrators who created popular maps, at women who pioneered social and persuasive mapping promoting causes such as suffrage, at women travelers who recorded their trips and mapped unexplored places, at women whose maps helped win World War II, at women academics who studied, taught, and wrote about cartographic theory at colleges and universities, and at women who worked in government agencies and commercial mapping companies. These are just a few of the stories of women in American cartography.

Exploring Imaginary Worlds Mark Wolf, 2020-10-08 From The Brothers Karamazov to Star Trek to Twin Peaks, this collection explores a variety of different imaginary worlds, both historic and contemporary. Featuring contributions from an interdisciplinary and international group of scholars, each essay looks at a particular imaginary world in depth and world-building issues associated with that world. Together, the essays explore the relationship between the worlds and the media in which they appear as they examine imaginary worlds in literature, television, film, computer games, and theatre, with many existing across multiple media simultaneously. The book argues that the media incarnation of a world affects world structure and poses unique obstacles to the act of world building. The worlds discussed include Nazareth, Barsetshire, Skotopogonievsk, the Vorkosigan Universe, Grover's Corners, Gormenghast, Collingsport, Daventry, Dune, the Death Gate Cycle universe, Twin Peaks, and the Star Trek galaxy. A follow-up to Mark J. P. Wolf's field-defining book Building Imaginary Worlds, this collection will be of critical interest to students and scholars of popular culture, subcreation studies, transmedia studies, literature, and beyond.

The World of Maps Judith A. Tyner, 2014-09-15 Maps have power; they can instruct, make life easier, mislead, or even lie. This engaging text provides the tools to read, analyze, and use any kind of map and assess its strengths and weaknesses. Requiring no advanced math skills, the book presents basic concepts of symbolization, scale, coordinate systems, and projections. It gives students a deeper understanding of the types of maps they encounter every day, from turn-by-turn driving directions to the TV weather report. Readers also learn how to use multiple maps and imagery to analyze an area or region. The book includes 168 figures; among them, 22 color plates. Most of the figures can be downloaded as PowerPoint slides from the companion website. Appendices contain a glossary, recommended resources, a table of commonly used projections, and more.
