Strategies for Struggling Readers Grades 3-8 shows teachers how to support students reading comprehension by teaching the strategies that highly effective readers use: summarizing, creating meaningful connections, self-regulating, and inferring. The author examines how, why, and when to use each strategy and what each strategy looks like in practice. The book also covers a gradual release approach that begins with teacher-directed instruction and leads to student-directed learning as skills increase. Specific teaching techniques to use with each strategy. Detailed lesson examples for reading instruction and content area reading. Reflections in each strategy chapter. The underlying principles in the book make these powerful strategies relevant for all elementary teachers, literacy coaches, and instructional leaders working to help students learn to read for deep understanding.

Starting with Comprehension Andie Cunningham, Ruth Shagoury, 2005. It is never too early to start comprehension instruction. In fact, reading begins with meaning-making. Andie Cunningham and Ruth Shagoury designed a reading program for five- and six-year-olds based on this premise. Most of the students in Andie's Portland, Oregon kindergarten class have little or no alphabet knowledge when they enter the classroom in the fall. English is a second or third language for many of the children in this low-income neighborhood. Through research-based principles, carefully structured routines, and innovative activities, even the youngest learners can develop comprehension skills from their first days in school. The children in Starting with Comprehension are grappling with school culture for the first time and learning to work with classmates who speak a variety of different languages. These emergent readers learn to present their understanding of what they read through writing, talk, movement, and art. Kindergartners and preschoolers are different from readers who know how to decode texts. Andie and Ruth show how comprehension skills can be nurtured and strengthened even before decoding begins. In this classroom, meaning-making becomes part of community building as children link reading, thinking, and communicating.
