The next title in the respected Artist's Materials series offers groundbreaking analysis of Sam Francis's working methods and materials. American artist Sam Francis 1923-1994 brought vivid color and emotional intensity to Abstract Expressionism. He was described as the most sensuous and sensitive painter of his generation by former Guggenheim Museum director James Johnson Sweeney and curator Howard Fox called him one of the acknowledged masters of late modern art. Francis's works, whether intimate or monumental in scale, make indelible impressions; the intention of the artist was to make them felt as much as seen. At the age of twenty, Francis was hospitalized for spinal tuberculosis and spent three years virtually immobilized in a body cast. For physical therapy, he was given a set of watercolors, and as he described it, he painted his way back to life. The exuberant color and expression in his paintings celebrated his survival. His five-decade career was an energetic visual and theoretical exploration that took him around the world. Francis's idiosyncratic painting practices have long been the subject of speculation and debate among conservators and art historians. Presented here for the first time in this volume are the results of an in-depth scientific study of more than forty paintings from the late 1940s to early 1990s, which reveal new discoveries about his creative process, inventive techniques, and specially formulated paints and binders. The data provides a key to the complicated evolution of the artist's work and informs original art historical interpretations. Sam Francis Peter Selz, Susan Einstein, Jan Butterfield, 1982

In this full-scale book on Francis, Peter Selz charts the manifold directions taken over the years by this leading second-generation abstract expressionist. Selz's sensitive evaluation gains an added dimension through his long-time friendship with the artist. Besides Francis's earlier works, the superb illustrations include a substantial selection of pieces in all mediums. The volume also contains documentary photographs of the artist and a revised chronology and bibliography. An inveterate experimenter, Francis was one of the early conceptual and process artists, and he broke new ground in printmaking. The book includes essays highlighting his innovations in graphics, including four-foot lithographs and the extraordinary monotypes that Francis calls instant paintings. Dust jacket The Prints of Sam Francis Connie W. Lembark, Sam Francis, 1992.
