

The Mourning—Liberation Process in Health and Disease

*George H. Pollock, M.D., Ph.D.

My research on the mourning—liberation process has been ongoing for over 30 years. As new questions occurred and as presumptive answers were obtained, new studies were and are still being undertaken. The research has taken me down various paths, some unexpected and nonpredictable. The research has made use of clinical data primarily. These were derived from my own life experiences, from observations of my patients, from consultations, from material provided me by my supervisees, by colleagues who shared their knowledge and personal experiences with me. These data were also provided by participants in clinical conferences in which the focus was on loss—abandonment—change and from studies in the scientific literature and that of the humanities (world literature, poetry, drama, art, music, sculpture, and philosophy) and from the social sciences (anthropology, history, sociology, and political science). My ongoing investigations of autobiography and biography—forms of outcome follow-up studies—have been most interesting and enjoyable. For example, comparative biographies and autobiographies in which different biographers writing about the same individual reveal the errors, distortions, and omissions in other biographies indicate that studies of biographers and autobiographers themselves may be a fruitful undertaking. As in all creations, autobiographic factors play a role in the outcome product. My research on the mourning—liberation process began in 1956, when I suffered the unexpected loss through death of my mother. I had not had losses from death previously, and despite my clinical work and personal contacts with friends who had such losses, my personal experience was something I had never had to deal with so directly and with so many different feelings and reactions. I studied myself throughout my period of bereavement and kept careful notes of my own dreams, fantasies, feelings, behavior, affects, memories, and reactions to and with significant others. I also spoke with members of my family and obtained information about their reactions. These family members included

Pollock,1989 Aging in the Twenty-first Century Len Sperry,Harry Prosen,2021-04-14 Covering a wide range of topics this collection of original essays deals with the consequences and challenges of our growing aging population on society It emphasizes aging as a developmental process while addressing the future of the practice of geropsychiatry and geriatric psychotherapy This book serves as a valuable resource to guide clinical training practice and research on aging into the next century and beyond The Power of Death Maria-José Blanco,Ricarda Vidal,2014-10-01 The social and cultural changes of the last century have transformed death from an everyday fact to something hidden from view Shifting between the practical and the theoretical the professional and the intimate the real and the fictitious this collection of essays explores the continued power of death over our lives It examines the idea and experience of death from an interdisciplinary perspective including studies of changing burial customs throughout Europe an account of a dying party in the Netherlands examinations of the fascination with violent death in crime fiction and the phenomenon of serial killer art analyses of death and bereavement in poetry fiction and autobiography and a look at audience reactions to depictions of death on screen By studying and considering how death is thought about in the contemporary era we might restore the natural place it has in our lives The Course of Life: Adulthood and the aging process ,1981 Handbook of Clinical Geropsychology Michel Hersen,Vincent B. Van Hasselt,2013-11-22 Over the last two decades the number of persons over 65 has increased by 65% Handbook of Clinical Geropsychology focuses attention on how the contributions of clinical psychology address the problems faced by this enormous population In the first part chapters cover a historical perspective clinical geropsychology and U S federal policy psychodynamic issues and other key topics Part II details assessment and treatment for a wide range of disorders affecting the elderly Part III considers such special issues as family caregiving minority issues physical activity and elder abuse and neglect SAGE Directions in Educational Psychology Neil J Salkind,2010-10-31 Educational psychology is a broad field characterized by the study of individuals in educational settings and how they develop and learn It incorporates information from such sub disciplines such as developmental psychology human development across the life span curriculum and instruction motivation and measurement and assessment Neil Salkind has mined the rich and extensive backlist of SAGE education and psychology journals to pull together a collection of almost 100 articles to be the definitive research resource on education psychology Section One Human Growth and Development focuses on the processes involved in human growth and development including ages and stages of development different theoretical perspectives and the role and effectiveness of early intervention among other topics Section Two Cognition Learning and Instruction concentrates on the mechanisms through which individuals learn and retain information Section Three Motivation explores why individuals seek out goals and what the mechanisms are that characterize this search as it relates to learning Section Four Measurement

Assessment and Statistics looks at the topics that are critical to understanding individual differences the growth in the use of computers as assessment tools qualitative and quantitative methods statistical techniques and evaluation The Annual of Psychoanalysis, V. 17 Jerome A. Winer, 2013-05-13 Volume 17 the first volume of The Annual published by The Analytic Press includes John Gedo's examination of the epistemology of transference and Edwin Wallace's outline of a phenomenological and minimally theoretical psychoanalysis Studies in applied psychoanalysis focus on the art of Edvard Munch Mavis and Harold Wylie George Eliot's Romola Jerome Winer and psychoanalysis and music Martin Nass Mended by the Muse: Creative Transformations of Trauma Sophia Richman, 2014-03-21 This book explores the relationship between trauma and creativity It is about art in the service of healing mourning and memorialization Grief Melissa M. Kelley, 2010-03-12 The experience of grief has been a source of intrigue and curiosity throughout history and it continues to stimulate thought and theory in various fields of study Unfortunately these fields tend to function in isolation from each other The result is a substantial disconnect between grief research theory and care which has evolved greatly over the last two decades and ministerial practice Using a metaphor of grief as a mosaic Melissa Kelley presents contemporary grief theory and research integrated with important theological religious and ministerial perspectives Written in an accessible way for ministers ministers in training and all pastoral and spiritual caregivers this book provides the most up to date theory and research in grief to help inform their care of others Through exploration of critical topics including attachment to God meaning making and religious coping in grief readers are brought right to the heart of a contemporary understanding of grief
