China's New Creative Clusters Michael Keane,2013-03-01 Recognising that creativity is a major driving force in the

"Useless to the State" Zvia Lipkin, 2020-03-17 In 1911 Joseph Bailie a professor at Nanjing University often took his Chinese students to tour Nanjing s shantytowns One student the son of a district magistrate followed Bailie from hut to hut one rainy day and was grateful that Bailie opened his eyes to the poverty in his own city However twenty years later when M R Schafer another Nanjing University professor showed his students a film that included his own photographs of the poor quarters of Nanjing his students were so upset that they demanded his expulsion from China Zvia Lipkin explores the reasons for these starkly different reactions Nanjing in the 1910s was a quiet city compared to 1930s Nanjing which was by that time the national capital Nanjing had become a symbol of national authority aiming not only to become a model of modernization for the rest of China but also to surpass Paris London and Washington Underlying all of Nanjing s policies was a concern for the capital s image and looks offensive people were allowed to exist as long as they remained invisible Lipkin exposes both the process of social engineering and the ways in which the suppressed reacted to their abuse Like Professor Schafer s movie this book puts the poor at the center of the picture defying efforts to make them invisible Urbanization Luca N. Wagner,2008 Urbanization refers to a process in which an increasing proportion of an entire population lives in cities and the suburbs of cities Historically it has been closely connected with industrialization When more and more inanimate sources of energy were used to enhance human productivity industrialization surpluses increased in both agriculture and industry Larger and larger proportions of a population could live in cities Economic forces were such that cities became the ideal places to locate factories and their workers This new book presents recent and significant research from around the globe Law, Policy, and Practice on China's Periphery Pitman B. Potter,2010-09-13 This book examines the Chinese government s policies and practices for relations with the Inner Periphery areas of Tibet Xinjiang and Inner Mongolia and the Outer Periphery areas of Hong Kong and Taiwan focusing on themes of political authority socio cultural relations and economic development China s history may be seen as one of managing the geographic periphery surrounding China proper Successive imperial republican and communist governments have struggled to maintain sovereignty over the regions surrounding the great river valleys of China The importance of the periphery is no less real today concerns over national security access to natural resources and long held concerns about relations between Han and other ethnic groups continue to dominate Chinese law policy and practice regarding governance in the Inner Periphery regions of Inner Mongolia Xinjiang and Tibet In the Outer Periphery Beijing sees engagement with the outside world particularly the West as inextricably tied to Chinese sovereignty over former foreign colonies of Hong Kong and Taiwan Using the case study of national integration to indicate how policies are articulated and implemented through law and political legal institutions this book will be of interest to students and scholars of the peripheral regions It will also appeal to academic and policy communities interested in legal reform in China China's Child Contracts Bao-Er,2007 Collecting the Revolution Emily R. Williams,2022-03-08 In the late 1960s student protests broke out throughout much of the world and while Britain s anti Vietnam protestors and China s Red Guards were clearly radically different these movements at times shared inspirations aspirations and aesthetics Within Western popular media Mao s China was portrayed as a danger to world peace but at the same time for some on the counter cultural left the Cultural Revolution 1966 1976 contained ideas worthy of exploration Moreover because of Britain s continued colonial possession of Hong Kong Britain had a specific interest in ongoing events in China and information was highly sought after. Thus the objects that China exported—propaganda posters, paintings, Mao badges, periodicals, ceramics, etc.—became a crucial avenue through which China was known at this time, and interest in them crossed the political divide. Collecting the Revolution uses the objects that the Chinese government sent abroad and that visitors brought back with them to open up the stories of diplomats, journalists, activists, students, and others, and how they imagined, engaged with, and later remembered Mao's China through its objects. It chronicles the story of how these objects were later incorporated into the collections of some of Britain's most prominent museums, thus allowing later generations to continue to engage with one of the most controversial and important periods of China's recent history.

Media, Identity, and Struggle in Twenty-First-Century China Rachel Murphy, Vanessa L. Fong, 2013-09-13

How are different groups of people such as sex workers, migrant workers, rural cadres, and homosexuals represented in China's media? How accurately do representations created by the media reflect the lived experiences of Chinese people? Do Chinese people accept the representations and messages disseminated by the media? Can they use the media to portray their own interests? How are media practices in China changing? Have new technologies and increased access to international media opened up new spaces for struggle in China? The essays in this volume address these questions by using a combination of ethnography and textual analysis, and by exploring representation in and usage of a range of media, including instant messaging, the internet, television, films, magazines, and newspapers. The essays highlight the richness, diversity, and sometimes contradictory tendencies of the meanings and consequences of media representations in China. The volume cautions against approaches that take the representations created by the media in China at face value and against oversimplified assumptions about the motivations and agency of players in the complex struggles that occur between the media, the Chinese state, and Chinese citizens.
