The Making of Women Trade Unionists Gill Kirton, 2017-03-02 In what will be essential reading for all industrial relations scholars Gill Kirton considers the social construction of women s trade union participation in the context of male dominated trade unions Exploring the making and progress of women s trade union careers this book locates the issues within the context of their experiences of three interlocking social institutions the union work and family The book examines how and why women embark on trade union careers the social processes which shape women s gender and union identities and the combined influences of union work family contexts on the trajectory of women s union careers Additionally the book offers a historical overview of the development of women s trade union education and separate organizing with original analysis and historical data

Gendering and Diversifying Trade Union Leadership Sue Ledwith, Lise Lotte Hansen, 2013 Examining the experiences of leadership among trade unionists in a range of unions and labor movements around the world this volume addresses perspectives of women and men from a range of identities such as race ethnicity sexuality and age It analyses existing models of leadership in various political organizational forms especially trade unions but also including business and management approaches leadership forms which arise from fields such as community pedagogy and the third sector This book analyzes and critiques concepts expectations and experiences of union leaders and leadership in labor organizations while comparing gender and cultural perspectives Contributors to the volume draw on empirical research to identify key ideas beliefs and experiences which are critical to achieving change setting up resistance and transforming the inertia of traditionalism

Learning with Trade Unions Moira Calveley, 2017-03-02 This edited collection provides an understanding of the range of learning that is enabled by trade unions and the agendas around that learning. It comes at an important time as in the UK recent years have seen significant new opportunities for unions involvement in the government's learning and skills policy. At the same time trade unions have had to cope with declining membership and changing employment patterns and thus have a keen interest in defining their role in contemporary employment relations and in pursuing strategies for union renewal. Therefore in order to explore these dynamics a strong feature of the book is its drawing together of informed research based contributions from the fields of training skills and education and of industrial relations. International and historical perspectives are included in order to better understand the contemporary issues. There are important conclusions for policy makers practitioners and researchers.

The Future of Trade Unionism Magnus Sverke, 2019-05-23 First published in 1997 this volume discusses the conditions for contemporary and future unionism in the light of recent economic political and managerial changes. It presents theoretical and empirical research from Australia Austria Canada Denmark Italy the Netherlands New Zealand Russia South Africa Sweden and the United States. Part 2 provides a rich international description of threats and challenges to contemporary and future unionism. Part 3 focuses on union strategical and structural change. Part 4 is concerned with the consequences of the changing union environment for member union relations. Magnus Sverke and the contributors here present research addressing how the changing environmental conditions affect unions and their members and demonstrate the importance of applying an international and multi disciplinary perspective on the analysis of these issues.

The Politics of Post-Industrial Welfare States Klaus Armingeon, Giuliano Bonoli, 2007-01-24 This new study assesses the welfare state to ask key questions and draw new conclusions about its place in modern society. It shows how the welfare states that we have inherited from the early post war years had one main objective to protect the income of the male breadwinner. Today however massive social change in particular the shift from industrial to post industrial societies and economies have resulted in new demands being put on welfare states. These demands originate from situations that are typical of the new family and labour market structures that have become widespread in western countries since the 1970s and 1980s characterised by the clear prevalence of service employment and by the massive entry of women in the labour market. Against this background this book presents a precise and clear definition of new social risks. A concept being increasingly used in welfare state literature focuses on the groups that are mostly exposed to new social risks women the young the low skilled in order to study their political behaviour assesses policymaking processes that can lead to successful adaptation. It covers key areas such as child care care for elderly people adapting pensions to atypical career patterns active labour market policies and policy making at the EU level. This book will be of great interest for all students and scholars of politics sociology and the welfare state in particular.

Gender Autonomy in Western Europe R. Singh, 1998-05-11 Rina Singh's book compares seventeen Western European countries in the area of women's involvement in the public sphere participation and policies affecting it and private sphere roles and policies affecting it. The interaction between the two spheres is analysed to determine where countries lie in the process towards gender autonomy ultimately the ability of each sex to make free lifestyle choices to participate in both or either the public and private spheres in a way that neither penalises nor rewards the choices in material and or social terms Four models of gender autonomy are proposed

We Just Keep Running the Line LaGuana Gray, 2014-11-05 The poultry processing industry in El Dorado Arkansas was an economic powerhouse in the latter half of the twentieth century It was the largest employer in the interconnected region of South Arkansas and North Louisiana surrounding El Dorado and the fates of many related companies and farms depended on its continued financial success We Just Keep Running the Line is the story of the rise of the poultry processing industry in El Dorado and the labor force composed primarily of black women upon which it came to rely At a time when agricultural jobs were in decline and Louisiana stood at the forefront of rising anti welfare sentiment much of the work available in the area went to men driving women into less attractive labor intensive jobs LaGuana Gray argues that the justification for placing African American women in the lowest paying and most dangerous of these jobs like poultry processing derives from longstanding mischaracterizations of black women by those in power In evaluating the perception of black women as less than white women less feminine less moral less deserving of social assistance and less invested in their families and communities well being Gray illuminates the often exploitative nature of southern labor the growth of the agribusiness model of food production and the role of women of color in such food industries Using collected oral histories to allow marginalized women of color to tell their own stories and to contest and reshape narratives commonly used against them We Just Keep Running the Line explores the physical and psychological toll this work took on black women analyzing their survival strategies and their fight to retain their humanity in an exploitative industry A Lifetime of Labor Alice H. Cook, 2000 This book is both graceful autobiography and perceptive social history that will be of lasting value Library Journal
