Stress Less, Live More Sarah Frances Mitchell, In the quiet moments before dawn when the world still sleeps and our minds begin to stir many of us find ourselves already cataloguing the day s worries The presentation at work the bills that need paying the family obligations that seem to multiply like weeds in an untended garden This early morning anxiety has become so commonplace that we ve begun to accept it as normal as simply part of being an adult in today s fast paced world But what if this acceptance is part of the problem What if the stress that we ve normalized is actually stealing our capacity for joy creativity and genuine connection with others The truth is that while stress has always been part of the human experience the chronic unrelenting nature of modern stress represents something fundamentally different from what our ancestors faced Our nervous systems evolved to handle acute threats the sudden appearance of a predator a natural disaster or immediate physical danger In these situations stress serves us well flooding our bodies with adrenaline and cortisol to help us fight or flee But our modern stressors rarely resolve themselves in minutes or hours Instead they linger for weeks months or even years keeping our stress response system perpetually
