

A warm, golden-hour photograph of two women standing in a field of tall grass and wildflowers. They are seen from behind, holding hands and raising their arms towards the bright, hazy sky. The scene is bathed in the soft, orange light of a setting or rising sun, creating a peaceful and nostalgic atmosphere.

"A sister is a forever friend, a confidante, and a soulmate."

Bookstein,2014-02-28 In Measuring and Reasoning Fred L Bookstein examines the way ordinary arithmetic and numerical patterns are translated into scientific understanding showing how the process relies on two carefully managed forms of argument Abduction the generation of new hypotheses to accord with findings that were surprising on previous hypotheses and Consilience the confirmation of numerical pattern claims by analogous findings at other levels of measurement These profound principles include an understanding of the role of arithmetic and more importantly of how numerical patterns found in one study can relate to numbers found in others More than 200 figures and diagrams illuminate the text The book can be read with profit by any student of the empirical nature or social sciences and by anyone concerned with how scientists persuade those of us who are not scientists why we should credit the most important claims about scientific facts or theories
